Important Realty Deal To Develop 100 Acres

Perhaps the most important realty deal for years in Weymouth which has been pending for several weeks has just been consumated by Harry N. Belt and Chamberlain & Burnham, Inc., who are represented in Weymouth by Arthur P. Pope as district manager. The transfer runs well into the thousands of dollars and includes nearly 100 acres and three sets of buildings.

Heirs of the Loud Estate in Paris, Philadelphia and Boston have passed title to this historic property running thru from Commercial to Essex and Broad streets; to the "Weycroft Weymouth Trust", A. Waldo Phinney of Boston and Clifton O. Dyer of Watertown, trustees.

The property is to be sub-divided and developed into a high class suburban residential district to be known as "Weycroft".

Russell H. Whiting, C. E., of Weymouth, known as one of New England's leading landscape architects and surveyor, is laying out the development in a most artistic manner with attractive winding streets to be 50 feet wide, with lots of different sizes and shapes for all desires, with moderate restrictions as to cost of houses, regulation set-backs, etc., as usual for high class, attractive home development.

The Trustees inform the Gazette-Transcript that "Weycroft" will be one of the most beautiful developments along the South Shore, as the land is slightly elevated and furnishes a wonderful view of country and salt water and is only 3 or 4 minutes walk from the Fore river.

Chamberlain & Burnham, Inc., New England's largest real estate clearing house, have exclusive sale of the property and Arthur P. Pope, their district manager, will establish an office on the property.

Negotiations are now pending on several sales, notce of which will be published later.

Unfortunate Fatal Accident To South Weymouth Boy

One of those unfortunate accidents that will happen every once in a while took place at East Weymouth on Sunday, when Talbert J. Liley, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Liley of 304 Main street, South Weymouth, was shot through the stomach and instantly killed by his schoolmate and chum, Benjamin S. Files, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Files, while in the dining room of the latter's home, the Luzlben poultry farm, 875 Pleasant street, East Weymouth.

The shooting was evidently accidental, a case of "not knowing the gun was loaded", and the police, after an investigation, took no action against the Files boy.

In the absence of his father and mother, the Files boy invited the Liley boy and two other chums, James Cameron, 15, of 626 Pleasant street, East Weymouth, and William McCarron, 16, of Washington street, South Weymouth, to his home to play with him. They had been romping in the house when they came across firearms belonging to Files' father—a revolver and two shotguns. They started to take the guns apart and did, except for one of the shotguns, an old and rusty weapon.

Files, seizing the old gun, pointed it at young Liley, and pulled the trigger. Much to his astonishment, there was a flash, followed by smoke and a sharp report. The Liley boy fell to the floor, the shot having entered his abdomen.

Files immediately telephoned to the police and told what had happened. Dr. John Granger responded to a call, but the Liley boy was dead before he arrived, and it was his opinion and that of Medical Examiner John C. Frasier, who came later, that the lad had died instantly.

The medical examiner, as well as Chief of Police Arthur H. Pratt and Sergt. Edward Butler, who made the investigation, were satisfied that the shooting was accidental.

The Files and Liley boys were both pupils in the ninth grade of the Nevins school, South Weymouth, the last school year and were both members of troop 9, Boy Scouts.

An inquest is required and will be held at an early date.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at Trinity Episcopal church, Rev. William Hyde officiating. Many schoolmates were in attendance. The choir sang "Rock of Ages" and "Nearer My God to Thee".

Interment was at Mt. Hope cemetery The bearers were Kimball Mansfield, George Hawes, Everett Simons, Russell Tower, Tom Liley and Donald Brackett, who were schoolmates.

HOLIDAY EVENT

The principal event scheduled for the holiday in Weymouth is the anniversary of the Old Colony Driving Club, which will celebrate with horse races, trotting, running races, trick riding, Roman chariot races, baseball, band concerts, etc., at South Weymouth.

Article 1

Under Article 1 there were several unexpected reports.

H. H. Joy read a report of the committee on additional land for park purposes on Weymouth Great hill. He had received a proposition from Mr. Bradley to exchange land.

Report accepted as progressive.

Richard Halloran reported for committee on bathing beach on Whitman's pond, recommending the taking of land bordering on Lake street.

No action was taken.

Charles Tobin asked for report of the committee to investigate the prices of gas and electricity paid in Weymouth, but none of the committee volunteered any information; in fact no meeting has been held by the committee appointed four months ago.

Mr. Tobin moved that Selectmen be authorized to take subject to State Commission on Public Uilities, but motion was declared out of order.

A motion to discharge the committee prevailed, but later was reconsidered after debate.

The committee was asked to further consider.

Article 2

Voted $110 for marking graves of soldiers and sailors buried in Weymouth, who served in War of 1812.

THURSDAY MORNING FIRE

Box 46 at 7.30 Thursday morning called the Central fire apparatus and Comb. 3 to the house on Washington street known as the "O'Brien House" which was totally destroyed. The man who lived there, name unknown, was at the Weymouth depot at the time, but was summoned home. The house was a total loss,—about $3000.

OFF FOR LONG CRUISE

Rev. Frederick W. Raymond, a native of Weymouth, pastor of the North Congregational church, Oak Park, Ill., left Oak Park last Tuesday evening for New York. On Thursday noon he sailed, as the guest of a friend, on the Steamer Tuscania of the Cunard Line for the summer Mediterranean cruise arranged by Thomas Cook and Son.

The first stop on the cruise will be at Madeira on July 11. Sailing from there the 12th, Gibraltar will be reached on the 14th, Malaga on the 16th and Monaco on the 18th. From Genoa he will go overland to Venice with two days each in Florence and Rome. Athens and Constantinople are the next important points visited. Early in August he will have six days in and about Jerusalem; thence via Alexandria, he will have five days in Cairo. Naples will be reached on the return trip on August [illegible], and stop will be made at Gibraltar on the 24th and New York will be reached on September 2.

The invitation to such a trip came to Mr. Raymond soon after taking up his work in Oak Park, but the dates then set made it seem inadvisable for him to be absent so soon and it was declined. When it was renewed to include the regular month of vacation it seemed to offer opportunities which could not be lightly turned aside and the church and the Chicago Extension Society generously concurred in the arrangement, allowing the extra period of leave of absence.

During the past six months, without a pause between pastorates, Mr. Raymond has labored unceasingly in the work of the church, until he was laid aside by illness several days ago.

DAY FLOWERS

Two bright blue flowers looked out upon the world and smiled at each other.

"It's a nice world," said the first.

"Very nice," said the second.

"Strange," said the first, "that Brother Day Flower the Third doesn't want to see what is going on."

"Strange, indeed," said the second. "But that is the family way, I suppose."

"I'm thankful," said the first, "that I am not Brother Third Flower. As it is I can look about me and enjoy myself for a short time."

"I'm thankful, too," said the second. Now these two blue flowers were very bright and very pretty. They were of a lovely color and they were dressed very handsomely in their blue costumes.

Near them was a third flower, but the third flower was not blue in color. Instead the third flower wore a very simple white costume which would not be particularly noticed.

And, too, the third flower was smaller and did not amount to very much.

"Yes," the first flower said again, "I am thankful that I am not Brother Day Flower the Third. I know the old family custom.

"Three of us belong to this little family group but of the three one must not be much noticed. One must be simply dressed in a whitish costume and must not wear the blue costume worn by the other two.

"I do not know the reason for this but this is the way it has always been, and so I suppose it is all right.

"It is true I am so happy that I did not happen to be Brother Day Flower the Third and yet I wasn't greedy about choosing this costume.

"I did not push Brother Day Flower out of the way nor did I say:

"'Here, Brother Day Flower, I was promised the blue costume and my other brother was promised the other blue costume.

It's a Nice World.

"'Now there are only two blue costumes and we spoke for them first, so you must not have one.'

"I didn't say anything like that to him. I wasn't really greedy, only I am so pleased that it happened that I should have been chosen to be Brother Day Flower the First."

"And I am so glad that I was chosen to be Brother Day Flower the Second," the second flower said.

"It was just because Mother Nature chose us to have the blue costumes. And Brother Day Flower the Third doesn't seem to mind.

"No, I don't mind," said Brother Day Flower the Third, in a very low voice. "I don't mind at all. In fact I would rather have it this way.

"I would rather not dress up in a showy costume. I'm not fond of dressing up. Mother Nature must have known that I would be the one made happiest by not having to dress up.

"I am pleased to be the way I am."

The two blue flowers looked at each other and smiled, such pretty flower smiles.

And they smiled at their third brother, too.

Then they seemed to grow quieter, as though they felt sleepy and soon they had folded up their petals about them and had gone to sleep.

For the Day Flowers close up after noon has arrived and never do they open again. They really should almost be called Half-Day flowers.

But the wooded country where they had bloomed had, somehow, felt complimented that they had been paid the attention of this short flower blooming visit.

Do You Agree?

John—I say, Harry, which is of the most value, twenty quarters or a five-dollar bill?

Harry—Why, twenty quarters, of course.

John—Wrong! The five-dollar bill is the most valuable, because when you place it in your pocket you double it and when you take it out again you find it in creases (increases).—Boys' Life.

Sherlock Holmes

Jones—I wonder where the step-ladder is?

Mrs. Jones—Willie had it last.

Jones—Then it's probably in the pantry.

Son's Heroism

"William! You've been fighting again. Your nose is bloody—one eye is black—your teeth—Oh, you are a sight! Do you know how you look?"

"Tut, tut, maw. What does a hero care for looks?"

Do You Pay Your Bills?

Being One of a Series of Talks on Bills and the Prompt Payment Of Them. Do you owe any Bills That Are Overdue?

"LET'S HAVE AN UNDERSTANDING"

No credit man will turn a debtor down who tells the TRUTH. For TRUTH is the foundation of CREDIT.

YOU owe an account—YOU have owed it for several months—it is long past due—You want to pay it—circumstances, perhaps, have been against you—then in all fairness to the credit man make a frank statement of your conditions.

You will find the credit man willing to help the honest debtor, if he can. More often his hands are tied. The debtor will not make any attempt to make PROMPT PAYMENT of his account. He, there-fore, can not expect any consideration at the hands of the Credit Man.

If you are not willing to make a "clean breast" of your actual conditions, you have not good reason for thinking you will receive any consideration ot the hands of the credit man.

It is useless to dodge the issue for every credit man in Plymouth, Norfolk and Barnstable Counties are acquainted with your method of paying credit obligations. He knows just how you stand with every firm doing business in both counties.

If you don't pay—if you won't be honest enough to give facts—if you don't make any effort whatever to reduce your indebtedness, you may be sure that the credit man is "GOING AFTER" the money due his firm.

Sometimes drastic measures are necessary to collect an account. You can save yourself lots of trouble and much embarrassment by paying your bills promptly, or by giving the credit man valid reasons for your delinquency.

Don't let your bills accumulate!

PROMOTED OR FIRED?

A young man, having found the wallet of a business executive, was ushered into his private office.

Said the latter: "Well, young man, say what you have to say and say it quickly. My time is worth a dollar a minute."

"And so is mine. Here is a wallet you lost yesterday, less pay for an hour's time which I used in waiting to see you," the young man replied as he extracted $60 from the wallet.—Stevens Tech. Stone Mill.

OR HAVE HER SPIT IT OUT?

Wife—My, that poor girl ought to be operated on for such an impediment in her speech.

Hubby—It would only be necessary to extract her gum.

Enlightened

"I have a window in my soul!"
Announced the poet great;
His brother said: "Your words give me
A pane I can't locate!"

Poems Were Lacking

The Bore—Do you know, Tennyson's poems carry me completely away?

Miss Pert—Really? I'm awfully sorry we haven't a volume in the house.

Interesting Tug of War

Old Sailor—Yes, mum, that's a man-o'-war.

Lady—How interesting! And what is that little one just in front?

Sailor—Oh, that's just a tug.

Lady—Oh, yes, of course, tug of war. I've heard of them.

Would Save One Meal

"I fear Helen is going to marry a very mean man."

"Why do you think so?"

"She suggested a morning wedding, but he wanted to make it after lunch, on the ground that she would get one more meal at home."

DEPENDS ON THE FORM

Betty—Is it bad form to appear in knickers?

Bess—That depends on the form.

Surcease

I dreamt I dwelt in marble halls.
It was a great sensation
To gayly snore and dread no more
The housing situation.

Trying a Technicality

Doctor—You have been living too high. You have violated nature's laws and must pay the penalty.

Patient—Oh, come, now, doc! Get out an injunction or something, can't you?

Reason Made Plain

"Lend you the flivver? Why don't you borrow of Markley? He's easy."

"But I don't know him as well as I know you."

"That's just it; he don't know you as well as I do."

Punishment to Fit Crime

Mother—What is little Freddie bawling about?

Father—He nearly swallowed my cufflinks, so I gave him a couple of cuffs.

Big Party

"Sister must be giving a swell party. She has ordered some lemon extract."

"Ah, a bottle for a cake?"

"No, she ordered a case."

MORE PRECIOUS STILL

"My, this good weather is worth its weight in gold!"

"More'n that—worth its weight in coal."

The Difference

Americans like action, fast,
From every game's beginning—
But Englishmen like tea and cakes
At every other inning.

Poor Outlook

"Papa, did Jack ask for my hand?"

"Yes, and I guess that's about all of you he could support. I found out that his salary would just about pay your manicure and glove bills."

ADVERTISERS—PLEASE

Please forward copy for advertisements as early in the week as possible when you desire a change—Monday or Tuesday when possible.

It is IMPORTANT because the four pages printed on Friday are always overcrowded,—last week we were forced at the last moment to omit two to three columns of news all in type, to accommodate advertising.

We find it necessary to print four pages of the paper on Tuesday with 15 columns of advertising, and on Wednesday four pages more, and on Thursday four pages more. Therefore we should have your "Ads" early

REV. PATRICK T. HIGGINS

The funeral of Rev. Patrick T. Higgins, pastor of St. Francis church, Braintree, who died Monday at the parochial residence, was held Thursday morning at 10.30 in St. Francis church, over which he had been pastor for six years. The celebrant of the mass was a brother, Rev. James Higgins of Armagh, Ireland, who was on a visit to this country and who was with his brother when he passed away.

The deacon of the mass was Very Rev. Michael J. Owens of St. John's church, Quincy, dean of the Catholic clergy of Norfolk county. The sub-deacon was Rev. John Harrigan of St. Ambrose church of Dorchester and the eulogy was preached by Very Rev. Fr. Owens. Cardinal O'Connell was present at the mass and pronounced the final absolution.

Arrangements for the funeral were carried out by Rev. John W. Welch, curate to Fr. Higgins, acting under the direction of Cardinal O'Connell. The musical part of the mass was sung by a priests' choir under the direction of Rev. Neil Cronin.

The death of Fr. Higgins, while not unexpected, was received, with profound grief by people of all creeds and classes. Fr. Higgins was a profound student and was an authority on the Canon law of the Catholic church.

AMERICAN RED CROSS

Last year the Weymouth chapter accepted its share in the Christmas bags which were sent out to our men in the Army and Navy who are serving in distant parts.

The letters of appreciation received bear witness to the fact that the work was worth while; one reads as follows:

Corozal, C. Z.,
December 26, 1923

"To the lady who packed my bag:"

I want to express my thanks to the Lady who sent the little cretonne bag that I received. It contained just the things that are very hard to get down here in Panama.

To tell you that I was overjoyed with it is but saying a small part of what is in my mind.

I am an old soldier, but it makes a lump come in my throat to think that back there in the homeland there is someone who thinks of the soldiers.

It is the first Christmas gift that I have had given to me for a long time, and it makes me feel as if I am a little fellow once more. Every package I opened gave me a thrill for you know, a man may grow grey hairs and get hardened to the world but he never grows up. He is always expectant—looking for something that never comes.

Your thoughtfulness has placed a bright spot in the hearts of many soldiers this year, men who are used to having nothing but an Army dinner

May all of you women who are to look forward to.

lowers of that wonderful woman "Florence Nightingale" be blessed with happiness this Christmas tide.

Wishing you all a prosperous New Year, I am truly yours.
(Signed)

A. DERBYSHIRE, 1st Sgt.

In one section of Alaska all means of winter transportation they have there was used; steamship, Alaska R. R., horse-drawn mail sled, dog-drawn sled and by men carrying some on snow shoes; in that section 37 stations were reached and at many of these there was only one man, at numerous others only two or three men, but they all had their bags on Christmas day.

The Weymouth Chapter has again accepted its allotted quota and the bags will be ready at the appointed time so that the men may be sure to receive their remembrance for next Christmas.

BONUS BLANKS

The committee appointed by Weymouth Post to assist in the filling out of the "Adjusted Compensation" blanks wishes to advise dependants of deceased service men that it is using every effort in its power to secure the necessary information to properly assist in the preparation of applications for dependants' Adjusted Compensation.

The provisions of the Adjusted Compensation Act as to dependants are, in some respects, difficult to interpret, and until the committee can arrive at a clearer understanding of the phraseology of the act the prudent course seems to be to defer the preparation of the blanks.

It is the committee's intention to visit personally the next of kin of all deceased World War Veterans, explain the terms of the act fully, and assist in the filling out and attesting of the blank. It is hoped that all the necessary information will be at hand in a very short period and further announcement will be made in due course.

About $20,000 Appropriated Also $20,000 By Water Bonds

This article calling for an appropriation of $26,000 for fire protection and water service at Lakewood Grove and the Birches was debated at length. The Appropriation Committee recommended reference to Water Commissioners.

The privilege of the floor was extended to several summer residents D. Arthur Brown said about half a million dollars' worth of property was located there, about 350 families in summer and 60 the year around. It was important that they should have fire protection and water the year around.

T. J. Kelly championed the petition, saying fire might wipe out the entire resort. Moved appropriation of $26,000.

Bryan Leonard asked how far that amount would go.

Commissioner Bicknell thought about two-thirds of the property. The cost of piping had been $4300 and the receipts were now $1996 annually. There was a summer service, but none in winter. Would be bad precedent for town to make appropriation.

George Cunniff was opposed to non-citizens being allowed to speak.

Mr. Cate asked if town had ever voted to raise and appropriate for water extensions.

Commissioner Torrey said it had always been from water revenue. Extensions were governed by expense and receipts.

Alfred Tirrell said there were more people at the resort who wanted water than there were in Ward Four when water was introduced.

Walter D. Allen, president of the local Improvement Association, said he was the owner of a bungalow there which was assessed for $3500, but cost only $3200; his tax bill was $129. Thought town was getting a pretty good revenue from an expenditure of $4000. Would like fire protection.

Parker T. Pearson said he was required to pay the interest on water extensions on his property and thought all should be treated alike.

Voted to refer to Water Commissioners.

Article 6

An appropriation of $50,000 at the Annual Town Meeting was rescinded, due to irregularity.

Article 9

On petition to lay out extension of Babcock avenue, the committee moved indefinite postponement.

Selectman Dasha favored acceptance. Thought committee had not visited the street and were not familiar with it. Would open up new way to King Cove beach. Moved acceptance.

Mr. Stiles said all the streets asked were needed but it was a question of expense.

Mr. Day said abutters had given land and we should keep faith with them.

Town Counsel Holbrook said report of Selectmen was not before the meeting.

Selectman W. M. Tirrell read report of board.

E. W. Hunt enquired cost.

Mr. Dasha—$2000

M. Sheehy opposed action at special town meeting.

Mr. Robinson favored as per article.

David J. Toomey secured appointment of a committee to consider the advisability of enlarging Madison Square near the new parish school.

Article 19

Committee recommended $3000 for draining Nevin school yard, and after debate pro and con the amount was voted.

Article 20

Committee recommended $1000 for Randolph street.

A motion was made to indefinitely postpone.

Selectman T. L. Tirrell and Selectman Waite said it would be necessary to close the street unless an appropriation was made.

Voted, 48 to 33, against postponement an voted $1000.

Article 21

The sum of $500 recommended for Thicket street was defeated.

Article 22

Without debate, $6250 was voted for new road roller.

Article 23

Voted $500 to repair and oil East street.

Article 24

Committee recommended no action on repairing and oiling Essex street.

Chairman T. L. Tirrell favored, and called upon Supt. Johnson.

Mr. Johnson said travel had increased on Essex street. It was useless to repair unless street could be oiled. Appropriation for oiling was expended.

Alfred Sheehy moved $700 which was favored by S. G. Dunbar and adopted.

Article 25

After some debate, no action was taken on additional sum for election expenses.

Article 26

Voted $2900 addition for police protection as recommended.

The motion to appropriate $10,000 was declared lost. On verification, 35 voted yes and 57 no.

Maj. Bauer favored a larger committee and moved to include four town meeting members not holding any town office. His amendment was adopted and it was voted that a committee of seven be appointed to consider the needs of a new ladder truck.

Article 31

No action on salary.

Article 32

Recommendation to appropriate $420 to reimburse Dr. Granger was lost.

Article 33

Article 35

When the new sections relative to the acceptance of streets was voted at the Annual Town Meeting, there were some irregularities, and therefore the corrected sections came up again for acceptance. After this explanation it was voted to accept.

WHY

Watches Must Undergo Series of Tests

The modern watch is compelled to go through a most drastic test before it is allowed to enter the pocket or to repose upon the wrist of the purchaser.

One of the most necessary things ascertained is the action which changes of temperature have upon the works. Extremes of heat and cold affect the running of a watch considerably. You may, perhaps, have noticed with your own watch that it cannot be relied upon to keep accurate time if the weather makes a sudden jump from heat to cold, or vice versa.

It will either gain or lose in an extraordinary manner, and you will wonder what is happening. When the weather becomes normal again, the watch will behave properly. Expensive watches are adjusted for temperatures varying between 35 degrees and 95 degrees.

Every watch is put in a tightly-fitting case, and placed in a chamber the temperature of which is slightly above freezing point. Its movement is observed very carefully, and adjusted from time to time, until the watch is going correctly.

The timekeeper is then moved from the cold chamber, and gradually heated in a specially constructed oven, the temperature of which is between 90 and 100 degrees. Here its internal arrangements are still carefully watched and adjusted from time to time. When the watch is going correctly in this temperature it is returned to the cold chamber for further adjustment, if necessary. It spends about a week in each chamber.

By the time a watch has passed the temperature test, it will go correctly in any climate. Chronometers ordered especially by explorers and travelers who are going to places where great extremes of temperature are encountered undergo very searching tests to make them thoroughly reliable.

Why Fuse-Wire Blows Out With Excess Current

When an electric current flows through a wire it makes the wire warm explains Popular Science Monthly. Different materials resist the flow to different degrees. Fuse-wire is made of an alloy containing a large proportion of lead, which gets very warm when large currents pass through it. Furthermore, since this alloy melts easily, the currents, if large enough, may cause the fuse-wire to melt.

Wherever current is being consumed in the house or factory, a piece of fuse-wire is put somewhere in the circuit. If through accident or design too much current should be used, the fuse-wire will melt, or, as it is usually described, "blow," and stop the flow of current before the copper wire inside the walls can heat up and set fire to the house.

Why Cats and Owls Do See Better at Night

It is not true that cats and owls can see better at night than they can in the daytime. No animal or bird can see better in the dark than when it is light. A cat can see better than a human being when it is partly dark, as at dusk, because its eyes are sensitive to the ultra-violet rays of the spectrum and the pupils are capable of great expansion, thus admitting all the light available. But a cat cannot see in absolute darkness. However, with the assistance of its whiskers as feelers and its surefootedness a cat can get around in the dark with considerable agility. It is this fact which has given rise to the erroneous belief that a cat can see better at night than in the daytime.

Why Diamond Is Hard

One of the most simple and beautiful crystals is the diamond. It consists, says Sir William Bragg, only of carbon atoms arranged in a very symmetrical way. Every carbon atom has four others spaced round it. The symmetry of the structure is such that the atoms are most difficult to displace, "for which reason a diamond can be used as a tool to cut any other substance, because the atoms of the other substance give way before the rigidly set atoms of the diamond." In the diamond can be found the rings of benzene, the fundamental structural unit of all the substances included in one great section of organic chemistry.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Why Snow Scared Arabs

Since the young Turks are trampling under foot the injunctions of the Koran by exiling the caliph, removing the women's veils and are preparing to prohibit polygamy and institute the marriage customs of Christian lands, there may be some excuse for a display of wrath from Mahommed. It must surely have been the prophet's anger which, for the first time, sent a white blanket of snow down upon Medina (Mahommed's place of burial) recently. The Arabs, who had never seen snow, fled in terror and public prayers were ordered.—From Le Figaro, Paris.

Why Sawdust Is Poor Feed

Hydrolized sawdust, a byproduct in the manufacture of industrial alcohol, is not a satisfactory feed for dairy cows in view of present prices of feeds and cost of treating sawdust, say government chemists. Though the product contains a large proportion of material of no food value, it can be used in limited quantities for dairy cows when ordinary feeds are very high in price.

COUNTY PREVENTORIA

July 1, 24 boys, 6 to 12 years of age, were recommended for the Preventorium on the grounds of the Norfolk County hospital. On the same date fifteen girls 6 to 12 years of age, were received at Foxboro Preventorium, St. Augustine's Farm, Foxboro.

These children have been chosen from the school clinics and from the Brookline and Quincy Dispensaries. They will remain for eight weeks and will return to their school duties refreshed by a summer in the open air and by the regular rest periods so necessary for underweight children.

The money for the board of these children at both preventoria has been raised through the local Health Christmas Seal sale, Red Cross, and town funds and is available for children in the following towns: Avon 1, Brookline 9, Canton 1, Cohasset 2, Dedham 1, Franklin 2, Medfield 2, Needham 1, Norwood 1, Quincy 6, Randolph 4, Stoughton 2, Walpole 5, Weymouth 2.

These children do not represent half the number who should enjoy this privilege, but we are unable to provide for more than this number this summer. The number next year will depend entirely on our Seal Sale returns for the coming year. The Norfolk County Public Health Association will pay the salaries of two nurses at the Norfolk County Preventorium for two months.

ANOTHER NUISANCE

"Misery loves company", so I can sympathize with you, Mr. Babcock, about those unsightly ash heaps that you spoke about. But my dear man, that is of small consideration to what I have to put up with. Perhaps you will sympathize with me.

I have a very kind neighbor who owns a large apartment house and his cesspool has been running over my lawn and driveway since March 1. I have repeatedly made complaints to the Weymouth Board of Health about it and I have received lots of promises that it would be attended to in a few days, always the same answer, in a few days.

You ask, "Isn't there any law about it?" Yes, mob law or K. K. K., but my dear Mr. Babcock, you and I don't believe in that—not yet— although some of our public servants are breeding such laws, unknowingly perhaps, but breeding them nevertheless.

I was glad to read your article and wish there were more men like you in Weymouth for it's a good old town to live in.

Yours very truly,
FRANK H. FLOYD

Essays Delivered at High School Graduation

The address of Miss Miriam Ethlyn Holbrock at the High School graduation is of historical value and is printed in full:

Seventy-one years ago, on the first Wednesday in May, 1853, groups of boys and girls could be seen wending their way along the old trails to the Town Hall, which stood near the center of the town, on a grassy knoll just beyond Whitman's Pond.

By nine o'clock, forty-one eager and expectant pupils had assembled, ready to be enrolled in the first class in the Weymouth High School, for which the sum of $1000 had been appropriated the year before by vote of the town. The School Committee, which consisted of the five Weymouth ministers, had given the required examinations in reading, writing, mental and oral arithmetic, grammar, and geography. The first teacher, Joseph Dow, taught twenty subjects, among them arithmetic, algebra, bookkeeping, anatomy and physiology, Watts on "The Mind", natural philosophy, United States History and General History, French, Latin, geography, English grammar, parsing, composition, reading, spelling declamation, and penmanship. He had been engaged for the first term, and was to continue through the year on a salary of $600, if the committee should be satisfied with his management.

The first term having closed with credit to the teacher, and with evident profit to the pupils, the committee voted that Mr. Dow remain through the year. It had been customary in the several districts for the pupils to take care of the school room, but this new high school drew its pupils from all the districts, so that most of them had far to walk. No one, therefore, could be found willing to do the necessary work and Mr. Dow was invited to become janitor at the munificent sum of a dollar a week,—and he accepted.

In those days all town meetings, many business meetings, and varied social activities were held in the Town Hall. Of course this seriously interfered with the regular session of the school, so that the second year the high school was divided into two terms, each five months long,—the first to be held in South Weymouth with Mr. Brown as principal, and the second in Weymouth Landing with the previous principal, Mr. Dow.

The third year of the high school opened its first term in the East Weymouth Grammar School with Mr. S. S. Marston, Prin., at a salary of $700, but owing to congestion and the dilapidated condition of the building the next term opened in October at the Adams School at Weymouth Heights.

This wandering high school of ours now returned to the Town Hall, where it remained from 1856 to 1859. In 1857 the number of pupils was limited to fifty, a certain number being allowed from each part of the town. Admittance was refused to thirty-five, who presented themselves for examination at the commencement of the summer term. This year the School Committee reported progress in all subjects except articulation. Record and tradition proclaim Mr. Fletcher to have been an exceptional teacher.

On March twenty-eighth, 1858, the school opened with sixty-four pupils. Because of this large number, Miss Mary Poor was hired as assistant at a salary of $124. The second term began August thirteth at the North Weymouth High School, with Miss R. V. Humphrey, assistant.

From 1859 to 1862 the high school was divided,—one high school in South Weymouth, and one in North Weymouth. We were called by a neighboring town a "Model School", sixteen classes with a principal and one assistant.

Again in 1862 the high school returned to the Town Hall and remained there three years. It was in this year that a regular three year's course was adopted and the school was organized into three separate classes. Those were stirring times!!! While the school was in session the Weymouth Company for the Civil War was drilling downstairs in the Town Hall. Two of the pupils went to war,—one from South Weymouth and one from North Weymouth. One was killed and the other died from wounds received in the war.

An amusing incident connected with this period relates that the school board offered a piano to the high school provided that everybody sing. One girl who was unable to sing refused even to try. For punishment, the principal ordered her to stand up in the middle of the room with a good singer, and try to sing. Tradition says the stubborn pupil did not like her punishment;—she left school and married—just for spite.

One of the graduates of 1863 relates the following incident: "Christmas was the only occasion when decoration of any kind was allowed in the school room. One Christmas, the boys obtained a cart, but no horse. After gathering evergreens they dared the girls to ride down to Weymouth Square, while they pulled the wagon. The next day the shocked and horrified principal gave them a lecture which they never forgot." Girls and boys of that time were not so very different from the girls and boys of today!

In 1863, just sixty-one years ago, a little class of four girls presented the first graduation exercises ever held in this town. Ella Hunt, now Mrs. Willam Wallace, was valedictorian, and received the first diploma. This historic paper, cracked and yellow with age, has been presented to Mr. Parker T. Pearson, Supt. of Schools, and will soon hang in his office. At the top of the diploma are printed the words "Weymouth High School". Underneath is the Latin motto "Scientia Lex Mentis",—Knowledge, the law of the mind. The main part of the document reads: "This diploma certifies that Miss M. Ella Hunt has been a member of this Institution, and has sustained a good moral character, and honorably completed the prescribed course of study. Given at Weymouth, Massachusetts, this sixteenth day of February, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three." In the lower left hand corner appears the names of two members of the school committe: J. P. Terry, Chairman, and Dan'l F. Goddard, Secretary. Opposite is the name of the principal, L. Z. Ferris, with the seal of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts standing guard between.

In 1865 our high school left the Town Hall,—never to return. Two high schools, one known as the South High in South Weymouth, and the other as the North High at Weymouth Heights (later at Weymouth Landing) were started and remained as two separate high schools until this present high school, on Middle Street was built and ready for use in 1898.

As we pass along several interesting items claim our attention. One comes from a grandmother who graduated in 1871. Her class of six girls held its fiftieth reunion three years ago, in 1921, with all members living and five present.

Another item tucked away at the very end of the school report of 1875 has this significant sentence. "In 1874 there were 106 pupils in our two high schools,—all girls."

We have told you of the first diploma, issued in 1863. It may also interest you to know that the 1,000th one was given to the last pupil to receive a diploma n the class of 1922.

Every graduating class, with few exceptions, has had its honor roll. But the distinction of having the largest honor roll in the history of the high schools easily belongs to the class of 1897, Weymouth North High School. Ten members of this class of thirty-one had an average of over ninety percent for their four years' work.

To-day the class of 1924 has the honor of being the first class to graduate from the new High School Hall.

We look back to that first little one room school of forty-one pupils which had its beginning in the Town Hall seventy-one years ago; we compare it with this spacious building of thirty-five recitation rooms with its present enrollment of 552 pupils; and we feel a thrill of pride and loyalty for the past and a vision for the future; a vision of great opportunities, greatly used—to the end that the youth of Weymouth shall appreciate its responsibilities for honest and honorable work, and thus grow toward that honest and responsible citizenship the world so needs.

WEYMOUTH IN 1950

The Salutatory address of Miss Margaret Emery Stevens at the graduation exercises of the Weymouth High School is printed in full below:

"We are glad to see here today the faces of so many of those who, with the same zealous interest with which they have watched our progress since we entered this school have come here to wish us godspeed on the journey of life, as we go forth from Weymouth High School forever.

To you, friends, the class of 1924 extends a hearty welcome.

Dear fathers and mothers, whose love and sacrifice have enabled us to attain this, our graduation, to you we give a loving greeting.

Superintendent of Schools and members of the School Committee, ever diligent and faithful, we welcome you to our graduation exercises.

Teachers, who have borne with us so patiently, to you we extend our parting greeting, a greeting mingled with the hope that your memories of the Class of 1924 will ever be pleasant.

But our message to you is not one of greeting alone; it is one of gratitude as well. We cannot fully express our gratitude to our parents, who have made it possible for us to obtain a high school education; to our faculty, who have made for us one of the finest high schools in the state; to the Superintendent, the School Committee, the voters of the town, and all others instrumental in obtaining for us this beautiful new building, from which the class of 1924 has the honor of being the first to graduate.

But it is not for these things alone that we are grateful. We go out today into a world of golden opportunity,—yes, really golden; for what were the opportunities of yesterday compared with those of today? For these marvelous opportunities, and for peace and liberty, we thank our forefathers; for it was indeed they who built the firm foundations on which have been established the principles of our glorious and promising country.

It is for us to carry on the great work. Wherever we may be, whatever our station, it is for us to fulfill the promises of a mighty age. Many of us will no doubt go forth into foreign fields in search of laurels. On the other hand, it is almost inevitable that others of us will settle here in our home town; and perhaps thoughtless persons will say that these are unenterprising, willing to let the world go by without them. But the more thoughtful will know that the inhabitants of Weymouth, during the next quarter of a century will be not merely quiet citizens of an unimportant town, but prominent actors in a great drama of progress.

We have learned recently, in connection with the Tercentenary Celebration and from our new and carefully prepared town history, of the past of Weymouth, and we know from our own experience how rapidly it has progressed during the past decade. Now it is hardly probable that this progress has come to a standstill; in fact it is practically certain that it has not.

Therefore, since our class looks to the future, of which it is to be a part, and since many, we hope, will remain to make the future of Weymouth, it seems fitting to consider at this time just what the future has in store for your town.

CHATS WITH YOUR GAS MAN

Every thrifty housewife knows that she can practice more economy in the kitchen than in any other room of her house or apartment. Practical hints looking toward the economical use of gas service are therefore welcome.

The six suggestions listed here are easy to follow, and, if put into practice, will effect a considerable saving:

Flames should be protected from side drafts.

Have your cooking utensil ready to put on the burner before the burner is lighted.

Turn off the gas when the cooking is done.

When water comes to a boil, turn down the gas or move the vessel to a smaller burner .

Don't heat a gallon of water when a pint will do.

Small burners are gas savers. ..Use them in preference to the large burners whenever possible.

WEYMOUTH, JULY 4, 1924

BE CAREFUL

Alfred F. Foote, state commissioner of public safety, issued this week from his office in the State House, a warning to all persons using fireworks this Fourth, to use extra precaution and care, that there may be as little injury as possible to persons or property.

The commissioner also suggests that city dwellers leaving their homes for a holiday in the country notify the police, that close watch may be kept on unoccupied premises.

"The approach of our national holiday, July 4, he says, brings to mind the unfortunate occurrence of accidents usually attendant on that celebration of the occasion. The careless or inexpert handling of fireworks and explosives, the careless use of matches where fireworks are stored, sold or used and the numerous fires of serious damage which contribute to the loss of life and property each year on the Fourth, mar the observance of the holiday and provide a sad ending to many demonstrations of patriotism.

"All private as well as public displays of fireworks should be made under the direction and supervision of some responsible adult person. Bystanders and particularly children often suffer death or serious injury from the careless handling of fireworks.

"Don't permit children the promiscuous use of matches. The flame of a match or the small roadside bonfire has too frequently been the cause of the death of many children. Fire spreads rapidly on the light material of summer dresses, and once smoke is inhaled, it usually results fatally.

"The blinding of children or the disfiguration of their persons by burns is a terrible high price for patriotism. A safer and higher form of patriotism is the conservation of life and property.

"No holiday should be the occasion of special hazards. Keep the holiday happy by the exercise of care and discretion. In case of fire, sound an alarm immediately and do not attempt to extinguish it yourself; it may result seriously. An incipient blaze may develop into a conflagration and result in disaster to your community.

So I ask you this afternoon to accompany me on a visit to Weymouth in 1950, and I wish to impress upon you at the outset that the Weymouth that we shall see is not the fanciful product of an over-imaginative mind, but the logical and almost inevitable result of the town's natural location and of the firm foundations that we are laying at the present time.

Returning in the summer of 1950, after many years spent in Europe and the Far East, we are surprised to find that our steamer, sailing direct from Liverpool, has turned to the westward out of the old "main ship channel", and is already passing the base of Weymouth Great Hill, a familiar landmark of our childhood. Near the lofty chimneys of the Edison super-power plant, the first unit of which was built during our senior year, we look in vain for the old bridge, long since replaced by a tunnel in order to give unrestricted passage to shipping entering the port of Weymouth.

Passing the power plant, which now occupies the entire waterfront formerly known as the Bluffs, the immense factory of the International Automobile Co., at Idlewell, and numerous smaller industrial plants, we dock at Webb St. Pier. In 1930 the port of Boston, fast becoming too congested in our time, was found to be inadequate, and in the succeeding twenty years small outlying ports have been established, which relieve the traffic of Boston Harbor as the Hudson River piers relieve that of New York. In 1945 Weymouth Harbor, well dredged, and equipped to meet the town's own commercial demands, was selected as the southern terminal of the Greater Boston Rapid Transit System.

A few days after landing we start out to see the town. Our route takes us first over Main Street to Nash's Corner, a familiar factory site—familiar, yet not so familiar. Having survived the decline of 1925, this is now one of the largest shoe factories in town. New buildings have been erected on the opposite side of Front St., making the plant three times as large as the original factory. Farther on, we pass the Weymouth Hospital, which, since the addition of four or five wings, now occupies the entire corner. The next point of interest is the town forest, which was started in our senior year. It now completely encircles Great Pond, and serves the triple purpose of beautifying the town, protecting the water supply, and furnishing sufficient soft wood for all local needs.

American Legion Park at East Weymouth, occupying the area bounded by Station, Broad, and Commercial Streets, and the New Haven R. R., and containing baseball and football fields, tennis courts, and a well-equipped playground, as well as many beautiful landscape features, is an attractive addition to this section of the town, especially as seen from the trains.

Our next visit is to the Weymouth High School. This, too, is somewhat changed. Another wing, balancing the one completed in 1924, has been added to the opposite side of the building. The vocational department has become one of the finest, fitting students for many walks of life. The well-kept grounds, with green lawn sloping to the street, add much to the beauty of the building. Conveniently located on the opposite side of the street is the new athletic field, which was first considered in 1924.

Our last stop is at the Town Hall. This is situated at the junction of Spring and Broad Streets, a site long ago suggested as a location for this building. The entire tract bounded by Spring, Broad, and Essex Streets, together with the present Town Farm property, has been taken for the development of a civic center, where are to be grouped all new public and semi-public buildings.

The Town Hall, a beautiful building of Weymouth seam face granite, is of course the central figure. It contains the municipal offices, where we are given an insight into the workings of the governmental system responsible for this seemingly model town. We learn that the executive power is vested in a board of three selectmen elected for five-year terms without regard to sectional lines. This board acts as a board of directors in working out the larger problems of town management, leaving the technical and administrative details to the various heads of departments.

Town legislation is still enacted by the representative town meeting, which has proved the most satisfactory form of popular town government. The citizens have come to realize the importance and the responsibility of the town meeting member; and the office attracts men and women of the highest ability, who are given loyal support by an enlightened and interested constituency.

New legislation in 1930 gave the Planning Board power, within certain limits, to carry out its own recommendations, and this board, numbering among its members our leading financiers, architects, and engineers, and having, as a working force, a town planning expert with a staff of technical assistants, has been the most important agency in the development of a substantial and beautiful Weymouth.

A short run over Broad St., which after several successive widenings is now broad in fact as well as in name, completes the circuit of the town and the sight-seeing portion of our visit. We have seen Weymouth as an important port, a Weymouth of great industries, a Weymouth of beautiful homes, a Weymouth with public educational institutions which actually fit each individual student for his particular place in the world, and with a government most decidedly "by the people', through representatives of ablity, who consider their administration of town affairs as the most honorable and important part of their life work.

A dream, you say? Yes, a dream; but the best features of our present civilization had their origin in dreams—in the dreams of men and women who supplemented their dreams with enough courage, ability, and good judgment to make them come true.

The future of Weymouth lies largely in the hands of the present and future members of this school. So as you graduate and think of scattering to other towns, to other states, and to other countries, in search of opporunity, keep always before you the vision of a greater and better Weymouth, lest, in making your decision you overlook your greatest opportunities, which are close at hand, here in our native town.

The Cincinnati Enquirer of June 23 said:

McGrath is sixteen years of age and is the son of Mrs. Catherine McGrath of 909 Paradrome street and a grandson of Michael McGrath, senior vice commander of Post 58, G. A. R., East Weymouth, who came to Cincinnati to be present at the graduation of his grandson. Mr. McGrath was accompanied by two of his grand children, Miss Eileen McGrath and Master Francis Healey.

Geo. E. Keith Co. Observe 50th Anniversary

Officials and employees of the East Weymouth plant united with those of Brockton in celebrating at Brockton on Tuesday the 50th anniversary of the founding of the George E. Keith Company, one of the largest shoe manufacturing concerns in the country. In observance of the day all the factories of the company were closed and the employees, as well as dealers from all over the world, were guests of the concern. Prominent among the guests were 164 men and women who have been continuously employed by the company for 25 years. Each was presented a gold piece.

Nearly 500 dealers, representing every state in the Union, as well as many foreign countries, as far as China, are special guests for the entire week. Present also were men prominent in the shoe industry all over the East. Factory employees and executives came early in the afternoon from South Boston, East Weymouth, Middleboro and Rochester, N. Y.

The official celebration opened at 2 o'clock with a parade of the 5000 employees and 500 dealers from the factory group to the Walkover club grounds, the spacious tract presented the employees a few years ago by the late Mr. Keith, founder of the business. The little factory where Mr. Keith started his business, and which has been preserved by the family, was the center of attraction for many out-of-town visitors.

At the Walkover club field there was a review of the parade by the company executives and by the veterans of 25 years. At 3 o'clock the big bandstand presented the company by the dealers all over the world was formally presented and dedicated, the presentation being by Irving B. Howe, president of the Walkover Dealers. Harold C. Keith, son of the founder and president of the company, accepted the gift and gave his anniversary address.

Later, there were humorous sports, a long midway that was open to everybody without charge, band concerts and dancing in the clubhouse and on a special floor laid for the purpose, on the athletic field. There also were special dancing features.

At 6 o'clock there was a banquet for all the guests, nearly 6000 of whom were present. From 7 to 9 there was a band concert and an entertainment by professionals. At 9 a big pageant, especially for the occasion and participated in by more than 300 of the company employees, including many of the executives, was presented. A display of fireworks closed the celebration. The pageant was an elaborate affair, covering the entire period of the history of the Keith organization. It was written by Mrs. Suzanne Cary Gruver of this city, who wrote the pageant for the Brockton centennial three years ago. Most of the costumes worn were made especially for the event. The leaders were C. Emil Carlson, Martin H. Thompson, John M. Eaton, Fred C. Hollis, Horace Woodward, E. Irving Kelley, Stanley Parmenter.

THE WEYMOUTH STATION

Greater Boston grows ever greater. And with it grows the need for light, for heat, for power. Edison Light is proud of its community, confident of the future, and conscious of its own responsibility for its share in Greater Boston's progress.

The L Street Station, in South Boston, is the Edison Company's main generating plant. Enlarged to its limitations as need has demanded, it now has a capacity of 195,000 kilowatts. The Weymouth Station, now building on the Fore River, will add, when completed, 300,000 kilowatts.

In 1921 Edison Light pictured the Weymouth Station, and planned it to be of a size equal to twice the needs of Greater Boston. Now work is being rushed to hasten the plant's actual operation. It is the obligation of Edison Light to anticipate the needs of its communnty and to meet those needs with preparedness.

AMERICAN LEGION NOTES

Weymouth Post held their regular monthly meeting at the G. A. R. hall, East Weymouth, Monday evening. A large number of the members were present. A great amount of business was transacted.

Application blanks for the Veterans Adjusted Compensation (which is the bonus) were distributed and filled out under the instruction of Comrade Alfred Sheehy. Luckily the police were not present as each and every man's finger prints were taken and imprinted on the applications.

The Post elected five delegates and four alternates to the State convention to be held at Pittsfield in August. Those elected were Comrades Thomas McCarthy, Alfred Sheehy, Henry Cote, Pasquale Santacroce and Commander Irving Johnson as delegates, and Comrades Edward Berchtold, Henry Litchfield, Thomas Dolan and Herbert Rockwood as alternates. It is the hope of Weymouth Post that the state convention this year will not be patterned after the Democratic convention at New York as the Post funds are getting low.

Next Saturday people in Weymouth and vicinity will forget whether McAdoo'll do or not, and will be at the Weymouth Fair Grounds to see whether Weymouth Post'll do what they say they will in putting over the grandest field day ever seen on the South Shore. Old Jupe Pluvius has promised to hang out the sun strong on that day so nothing will happen to mar the festivities. There will be sports for all,—baseball, horse racing, vaudeville and dancing. Fritz Brunnell will argue with Felix Sney, Rockland's Iron Man, on the wrestling mat. This act alone is worth the price of admission. We will have one of the most attractive midways of the year. The event will close with the best display of fireworks ever shown. Don't miss this show.

TRAVELLING FLAG RETURNS

The regular meeting of Corps 102 was held in G. A. R. hall on Tuesday at 2.30. Mrs. Estelle W. Richards, president, presiding. The president Mrs. Flora E. Smith and eight members of Norwood Relief Corps No. 78 were visitors, returning the "Travelling Flag" which has been accepted by many corps in Norfolk county during the past two years. A very pleasing entertainment was provided by Corps No. 78. Refreshments were served by Corps 102.

Later in the afternoon a memorial service was held in memory of the deceased members of Corps 102, conducted by Past Department President Mrs. Carrie F. Loring. Appropriate selections were read and floral tributes were placed upon the altar by the officers of the Corps. Mrs. Loring gave the memorial address.

AUTO ACCIDENT

A Quincy paper says: William P. Frazier of 41 Hobart street, East Braintree, was injured in an auto smash at the corner of School and Summer streets July 3 when his machine struck a tree. The auto was owned by Michael J. Killory of 372 Broad street, East Weymouth, and was being operated by Mr. Frazier. The latter was taken to the city hospital in the auto of Louis Ross. At the hospital Frazier was treated for a cut on the bridge of the nose and a cut on the left elbow.

—The summer session of the Quincy Conservatory of Music has opened for private or class lessons.

BOAT LOAD SEIZED

A thirty-five foot power boat loaded with 300 five-gallon cans of alcohol, cruising along the South Shore, made a landing at Colonial Point, off Norton street, North Weymouth, at 9.15 A. M. last Saturday.

The two occupants of the boat, who gave their names as Joseph Leonardo of 11 Ballantine street, Cambridge, and Samuel Palazzallo of 298 North street, Boston, had barely stepped ashore when they were arrested by policemen Anthony Panorora and George Hunt and locked up in the Weymouth Police Station to await the arrival of Federal officers.

The two prisoners refused to give any explanation of the presence of the alcohol on their boat, and maintained that they were "just back from a pleasure cruise."

It was shortly after 9 o'clock when a boy named Clancy sighted the craft as it lay off shore, high and dry, and no chance of it floating until high tide. He spread the news that the boat looked suspicious and when word reached Bridge street where the patrolman does duty, he started his investigation which resulted in the discovery of an alleged violation of the customs laws.

Police believe that on account of the heavy fog the boat lost its course while attempting to negotiate the sharp, frequent turns in the creek which makes up between Colonial Point, Weymouth, and Idlewell, Braintree Point.

ANOTHER DOG SHOW

Following the success of the Dog Show held at the Weymouth Fair under the direction of the Weymouth Kennel Club last year, a reorganization was effected and the name of the club changed to the South Shore Kennel club and the following officers were elected.

President, George Holbrook, South Weymouth.

Vice-president, Ernest C. Ruiter of Cohasset.

Secretary, Daniel W. Ashley of South Weymouth.

The Kennel Club benched 450 dogs of all breeds—in one of the best out door shows in New England and had Laddie Boy, the dog of the late President Harding, on exhibition for the first time. In addition to this they held a fox hunt, and a showing of trained German police dogs.

The show this year will be held on August 30 and it is expected that at least 550 dogs will be benched.

THE TAX RATE

Last week the Gazette stated that the appropriations made at the special town meeting would increase the tax rate over $1 per $1000.

The plan of the Appropriation Committee was to charge the special appropriation to the cash surplus from 1923. In some towns such surplus would be available to the Assessors to reduce the total to be raised in 1924. Town Accountant Dizer says it is not available in Weymouth. The estimated revenue is available but not the surplus except by vote.

This being the case, the special appropriations of $20,000 will not increase the tax levy of 1924.

J. W. Davis and Gov. Bryan The Democratic Nominees

All records were broken at the National Democratic convention in New York when 103 ballots were necessary to nominate a candidate for President. However, a good choice was made on Wednesday when John W. Davis of West Virginia was named. He was a former Ambassador to London, and has been solicitor general of the United States. He was born in West Virginia April 13, 1873, as was his father before him. He served in the West Virginia Legislature, and was twice a member of Congress, winning in both capacities a reputation for eloquence, fearlessness and devotion to the highest ideals of citizenship.

He has been twice married, and has a wife and daughter.

Mr. Davis is a southerner. He is a dry and he is an advocate of the League of Nations, but neither in the 1920 convention at San Francisco when he was also a "dark horse", nor in the present convention, did he become involved in any of the bitter convention fights which made enemies for other candidates. He was one of the few who escaped trouble in the klan debate at this convention.

To balance the ticket Gov. Bryan of Nebraska, a brother of William Jennings Bryan, was nominated.

A two-thirds choice of the convention was 732, but Mr. McAdoo's highest was 530, and Gov. Smith reached only 368. As Whiting of the Herald writes: Those two made a remarkable fight—a contest without precedent. They destroyed each other. Yet the nomination was reached by elimination; and the curious and encouraging thought is that that elimination produced, in the end, strength when it might have produced simply negation. Klan affiliation destroyed McAdoo. Klan opposition destroyed Smith. Wet association, plus klan opposition destroyed Underwood. Too close an identification with McAdoo destroyed Glass. Wet associations aborted the chances of Ritchie. Thomas J. Walsh was eliminated by the fact that he was permanent chairman of this convention. No chairman could have been nominated. Charles Bryan was eliminated by the fact that he was William's brother, plus the fact that he was himself. And at the last Ralston eliminated himself.

ALL UP FOR WEYMOUTH

Some folks don't like to admit it, but deep down in everyone's heart is a lasting affection and pride for our "home town". When we talk with the neighbors we are likely to complain of this thing or that, but when we are away on a vacation or visiting in other towns, we generally can proudly point out the good things about Weymouth. Seldom do we admit seeing anything that is comparable to the good old home town. Some of us, perfectly natural, normal, and otherwise honest folks, are even willing to stretch the truth just a wee bit when we tell out-of-town folks about Weymouth.

This peculiar trait of human nature can be turned to very good purpose by bringing to the surface that deep seated pride in our town and talking her good points to everyone at all times.

COOLIDGE FOR ECONOMY

"I am for economy. After that, I am for more economy. We must give the people relief from the excessive burden of taxation. We owe this to the people of our nation, to the people who must pay with their toil. The relief which has recently been afforded must be only the beginning. So in all your efforts, in all your sacrifices, you must bear in mind, that you are making them for the people of our country. There could be no nobler cause or one showing higher patriotism. Bear in mind always that we are here as the servants of the people and that only as we serve them well and faithfully shall we succeed."—President Coolidge to the administrative heads of government.

NEW ENGLAND WEEK

Preparations are on all over New England for a rousing big movement for the support of New England products by New England people. This movement will come definitely before the people during New England week which will be held from September 15th to 20th. The New England Chamber of Commerce is behind it and declares that New England is suffering from a severe industrial depression which, if it is not stemmed we shall all feel.

In a letter addressed to newspapers and people of New England this organization says in part:

"Retailers frequently feature and sell goods from a distance which increases the purchasing power of distant points rather than the local community on which the retailer depends for his prosperity.

"It is the intention to stress quality and to discourage price cutting.

"New England must be sold to the New England people first before it can be sold effectively throughout the nation and the world.

"It is desirable that New England workers and their friends see and buy their own products where they usually shop. They will thus better realize that goods are made for sale, that they must be made of the right quality, at the right price, and at the right time. New England Week will encourage lower costs through efficiency, improved standards of production, and a greater appreciation of the importance of service.

"Encourage local pride, the visiting of industries, and help the factory sell goods by using them ourselves.

"Southern and western towns and cities are cheering for their industries, are proud of them, and want more of them. Is it not time that New England did a little cheering? We have the quality of goods, the workmanship, and the brains.

"The attitude of our people towards industry is not always constructive. This can be improved. Note our depressing railroad situation, and the attitude of the public towards our railroads, which should be constructive. Note that increased orders are going to western shoe factories. But consider the condition of our own shoe trade just now! What are we doing to help it? Our textile industry is going south. Can we hold it? We have practically no automobile industry. Can we develop it?

"Increased orders for New England factories mean increased employment for New England labor, and increased prosperity for all other classes of New England people."

NEW OVERLAND COUPE

Unusual interest among feminine motorists has greeted the Willys-Overland's announcement of its new two-passenger Overland Coupe. Not only is it a light car embodying the manifold advantages of the entire Overland line, but it combines with these a driving comfort and convenience almost incredible in a car of these dimensions.

Nowadays, with the male members of the family requiring the use of the car during the day, there is a definite need for a second car in a good many homes, a car that can be used for shopping and visiting by the women folks of the home.

The new Coupe has proved itself to be ideally adapted for this purpose. Ventilating windshield, Dura window regulators, rear window curtains are little touches that appeal to feminine taste.

Coupled with these features is the ease of parking, and the unusual riding comfort due to the 136-inch spring base. It's ease of handling in congested traffic areas because of the exceptionally large steering spindles and bearings are decided factors in this new car intended for feminine use.

The new Coupe is equipped with doors that are over 31 inches wide, thus providing easy entrance. The body of exceptionally heavy metal, is sturdily reinforced. Unusual pains are taken with the painting operation, fourteen coats being applied to give the car its lasting durable finish.

The interior of the body is finished in durable, long grain Spanish leather upholstery. The seat cushion is over 45 inches wide, being ample to accommodate three medium sized people. There are 15 inches between steering wheel and cushion, rendering it convenient for the car to be entered easily from either side.

A roomy rear deck provided ample space for packages, which is an additional convenience for milady's shopping. Its hinged cover is provided with a lock and is protected against dust and leaks.

AN EVENTFUL DATE

Weymouth was on the first page of the Boston Globe fifty years ago, when the town observed its 250th anniversary. See anniversary column of Gazette-Transcript

—The spatula, a broad limber blade like an artist's palette knife, is an ever-ready help in the kitchen.

—Don't forget a pinch of salt in whipped cream, cake frostings, and more than a pinch in any food containing chocolate or nuts.

—Talking is like playing on the harp; there is as much in laying the hands on the strings to stop their vibrations as in twanging them to bring out their music.—Holmes.

Rich Red Roses Feature of This Winsome Blouse

Gorgeous roses of blood red appliqued on this white crepe de chine blouse, prove an attractive addition for a garment for summer wear.

Simple Way to Store Your Furs for Summer

If you have no cedar chest for your furs, you can improvise one very nicely. Take any tight wooden container with a closely fitting cover, such as an old-fashioned trunk or hinged box. Scald this out thoroughly, and let dry in the open air. Now take some clean newspapers and a generous quantity of freshly made, cooked paste which contains borax or alum. A teaspoonful of either one to a pint of paste will be sufficient.

Line the box with the paper, fitting neatly at the corners, and leaving no edges to curl up. Leave open to dry. Get some cedar chips or shavings and put into a loose cheese cloth bag; or if you cannot get these, get some storekeeper to save for you some empty cedar cigar boxes. Break these up. Take out the nails and put in the bottom of your cedar chest.

Purchase an ounce of cedar oil at the drug store. Take a wide-mouthed bottle such as olives or pickles come in when bought from the grocery store. Fill the clean bottle with absorbent cotton. Pour in sufficient of the cedar oil to moisten the cotton lightly. Then cork with a clean, fresh pledget of cotton, and stand in one corner of the paper-lined box.

Lay your furs in carefully, being sure that each piece is clean and free from moths or dust, for if there are moth eggs present they will hatch out. Cover the furs and woolens with clean newspapers. Sprinkle a few drops of turpentine over the whole and close the cover tightly.

If you have only one or two pieces of fur to pack away, and have no provision for taking care of these, get a clean pasteboard suit box. You can get one of these in a good, heavy quality at a store or a tailoring establishment. Clean your furs. Lay into the box; sprinkle with powdered tobacco. Put the cover on the box and paste a strip of paper tightly over the opening. This will prevent any wandering insect crawling up under and feeding on your valuables.

When you want to use the articles in the fall all you have to do is to break the seal, shake out the furs and hang them in the open air for half a day.—Exchange.

Lace Hats Stylish for Afternoon or Evening

Lace has been borrowed by millinery designers from the afternoon and evening frocks of the season, says a fashion writer in the Cleveland News-Leader. Now the sheer patterned fabric is made into charming hats to wear at the mah-jongg or bridge party. Evening hats for restaurant wear are also shown with lace as their trimming. And many of these hats are fashioned of all-over lace.

One lovely model recently noted at a mah-jongg fete boasted a crown of fine henna-colored milan. The brim of the hat was made of cocoa-colored lace stretched over supports of fine silk wire. Directoire in effect, the back of the brim flared upward and gradually sloped toward the sides with a line of colorful posies.

Black lace is very popular in millinery. It is made, for example, into a lovely little afternoon bonnet, reminiscent of the cloche, with a snug crown of black satin; brim covered in black satin with bands of silver ribbon stitched in concentric rows on the under side. A length of black Spanish lace, wide enough to allow the scalloped edge to form a short veil, is draped over the crown and tied at one side. The lace floats off into two streamers, one longer than the other.

Dyed lace, to match the frock with which the hat is worn, is sharing the popularity of black lace. Cire ribbon, which appears like a polished stovepipe, is again in style. It is now used in colors to match the lace with which it is employed. A large lace hat for restaurant wear, the crown and brim of which are both fashioned of soft lace, has a band of wide ribbon around the crown and streamers of the same at one side.

Striking Black Hats

Lovely black hats are a striking feature at the moment. They are rather large, made of tulle and lace, usually decorated with a few big vivid flowers.

THE HOLIDAY TROT

Again on the Fourth of July, Henry A. Baker of Rockland, the veteran horseman, now 84 years of age, drove his bay mare, Jingo, in Class A trot and pace at the matinee of the Old Colony Driving Club at South Weymouth and won both heats. The time in one was 1.05½, which has been exceeded only once since the club was organized 17 years ago. The track record is now held by M. L. J., a bay mare, formerly owned by the late J. W. Linnehan, who won a half-mile heat in 1.03¾.

TRUE INWARDNESS REVEALED BY CAR

Few Survive Trial Proclaiming Him Either Motor Gentleman or Auto Hog.

Nothing—no psychological test or character analysis—will reveal our true inwardness more quickly and with greater certainty than the motor car.

What a difference it makes! And how few of us really survive the trial which may proclaim us either a motor gentleman or an auto hog. Nothing will make the careless pedestrian a more sincere convert to "give and take" than the exhibition of uniform courtesy on the part of the driver.

Somebody has to start this movement toward better traffic conditions, as well as on the open roads. Let us, the motorists, take the initiative. There will be no doubt about the outcome.

Respect Rules of Road.

Considerate drivers do not willfully block foot crossings. They apparently recognize the right of a pedestrian to life, liberty and the pursuit of business. They slow up and stop, if necessary, to allow pedestrians to cross from curb to curb. They wait always for women and children, and even men, and do not deliberately keep them standing in the middle of the street between two streams of traffic. They respect the rules of the road. And as a result, they contribute much to the safety and comfort of the public afoot.

But the thoughtless, inconsiderate, disrespectful driver does none of these things. We see him every day plunging along like an unruly drunk, cutting in front of other cars, sliding corners, neither looking to the right or left, waiting for no one. Intellectually, morally and physically this sort of driver deserves to be called an automoron—or worse.

Of course, the pedestrians are to blame, too. They are careless of the rights and even the safety of motorists and other pedestrians. Watch a crowd of men and women at the curb waiting for traffic to pass. Every second some misguided persons elbow others out into the patch of streaming traffic—and danger—so they themselves can hurry across the street.

What can make a "get the h—l out of my way" driver slow down to let someone cross the street? What can force an "I dare you to strike me" pedestrian to recognize the rights of others? No matter how drastic, laws alone will not turn the trick.

Nothing but the Golden Rule can ever do it. We can pass laws until the statute books pile higher than the capitol at Washington. We can blow traffic whistles until we are blue in the face; but until everybody—drivers and pedestrians alike—realize that the other fellow has as much right on earth as they—there will be unsolved traffic problems.

Take Advantage of Down Grade to Conserve Fuel

If motorists would take advantage of coasting when the opportunity offers and when it may be done with perfect safety, they could materially add to their gasoline mileage when touring.

If it is a waste of gasoline to permit your engine to idle, then it is also a waste of the precious fuel to have it running on a down grade when it is perfectly safe for one to coast with it cut off. If the grade is too long and with curves, it is not advisable to coast, because with the engine shut off the motorist lacks that perfect control of his car that he should have.

Motorists should also see to it that their carbureters are adjusted for an average mixture—not too lean nor too thick. Efficient carburetion is a distinct aid to better gasoline mileage when coupled with intelligent driving. The gas shortage is causing many a motorist to acquire what to him are new wrinkles in driving his car. And they all help.

It is the fourth round trip of Mr. Prescott to the Pacific; the first of adventure via Panama canal when he took in the World Fair at San Francisco and San Diego, culminating in his enlistment in the Wild West division, and service in France and Belgium; the second when he returned from the World War and was honorably discharged in San Francisco; the third when he sought a bride; and now as the proud father of twin daughters. Mrs. Prescott is making her third round trip. The grand parents in California were very anxious to see those babies. The twins proved good travellers. An uncomfortable incident of the trip came at 3.30 A. M. the first night. All in the Pullman were aroused and told to change to the car in front, as their car was disabled. Travelling with two babies and necessary supplies, the sudden change in the night was not relished.

The original plan was a box lunch picnic, but the crisp salt sea air proved so appetizing to some of the members that they found it necessary to supplement the box lunch with a shore dinner. One of the "lightweights" of the party fell so deeply in love with the clams in all forms that the next hungry party to enter the dining room found only clam "ghosts" in the chowder. Some of the party took a pleasant trip on the "merry-go-rounds" while their devoted friends gathered on the platform to give them a send off and a hearty welcome at their return. All things considered the day was a perfect one, the only blemish being regrets for those who were detained at home by illness in their families or other unavoidable circumstances.

Her maid wore powder blue canton crepe with hat to match and carried tea roses. Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the bride's home with a large number of friends and relatives attending. GIRL SCOUTS

Captain Metcalf is keeping her girls in fine metal by weekly hikes; last week to Weymouth Great pond, where a basket lunch was enjoyed, and this week to North Weymouth where swimming, doubly enjoyed during the hot days, was a part of the sport and gave zest to the ever-ready appetites of the hikers.

The response of the public to the call of the Girl Scouts to patronize their movie afternoon and evening at the Opera House was sufficient to give all girls who possibly could go an opportunity to go to camp. Both reels were bright and funny; they doubtless were sufficient reward in themselves. The weather was unfavorable and the girls are grateful to those who made the effort to attend. The candy sale was an innovation at a moving picture program, but was well patronized. Mrs. Cuff's gracious kindness and interest went far toward making the undertaking the success it proved to be.

Mrs. Metcalf's untiring efforts to make this organization a benefit to her girls and so to the town is attracting the attention of others who may find time to lend the needed helpful hand to the work in the autumn.

CHATS WITH YOUR GAS MAN

It is not the cost of a fuel that counts so much; it's the cost of using it. And right here is where manufactured gas shows its best points.

For example:

Gas users tie up no capital (creating interest charges) in fuel stocks. They need no storage space.

They pay for no ash or waste removal.

They pay no freight, demurrage, switching or unloading charges. They pay no insurance on fuel stocks.

Each one of the above is an important money-saving feature of gas as compared with other fuels, lending further convincing proof to the statement, "If it's done with heat, you can do it better with gas."

Ten years ago there were a thousand separate and distinct uses for gas. Today there are in excess of five thousand, and further new uses are being steadily developed.

DECEASED VETERANS

If the veteran died before making application to the War or Navy Department for adjusted compensation or adjusted service pay, then, upon application by the dependents as described below, payments of his credits shall be made in ten quarterly cash instalments, beginning March 1, 1925.

Dependents of deceased veterans do not receive the increase of the adjusted service credit as is allowed in the cases of veterans living to file their own applications.

The payment to heirs of veterans will be made in the following order beginning March 1, 1925:

1. To the widow or widower, if unmarried.

2. If no widow or widower unmarried, then to the children, share and share alike.

3. If no unmarried widow or widower, children or mother, then to the father.

5. Payments of war risk insurance or compensation or both, which dependent heirs may be receiving, will not bar any individual from receiving the benefits of the bonus act.

No payments will be made to any heirs unless at hte time of the veteran's death they were dependent. Children under eighteen at the time of the veteran's death shall be considered dependent. Statements filed under oath will be required of fathers and mothers.

The term child includes: 1, a legitimate child; 2, a child legally adopted; 3, a stepchild, if a member of the veteran's household; 4, an allegitimate child, but, as to the father only, if acknowledged in writing, and if signed by him. The term father and mother include stepfathers and stepmothers, fathers and mothers through adoption.

REFERENDUM QUESTIONS

Seven referendum questions will be before the voters at the November election, several of them being matters passed by the Legislature two years ago.

Two of the questions call for expressions of opinion on whether the state should favor an amendment to the federal constitution prohibiting the employment of children in industry and whether the daylight saving law shall be continued.

Other questions are on changing the law by striking out the word "male" in the laws so that women shall have equal rights with men, and whether women shall be enabled to hold state, county, or municipal offices on the same basis as men.

Voters will also be called on to express opinions as to whether the state should adopt a law making it an offence to manufacture or transport liquor whether or not there shall be a two-cent tax on each gallon of gasoline sold in the state, the tax to be used for highway purposes, and whether or not foreign bankers accepting money for deposit shall be compelled to file a bond with the state treasurer.

Saturday was the last day for filing referendum questions with the secretary of state. While it has been rumored that the question whether or not "yeomen F" should receive the bonus would be placed on the ballot, no signatures were filed with the secretary of state, Frederic W. Cook.

LET GEORGE DO IT

Let George do it. George is any farm boy of high school age. He has already built 200,000 of the quarter of a million radio sets now in use in farm homes in the 48 states. Home made sets costing less than $6 are very satisfactory. Send a 10-cent coin to Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., and request Standards Circular Nos. 120 and 121 which will give full directions. Request also a copy of Price List 64 and look for other documents under Radio-Telegraphy.

AIR SERVICE MAIL

The Gazette-Transcript received its first letter by the new "air service" Monday morning. It was mailed at San Francisco at 10 A. M. July 3, and may have reached East Weymouth on Sunday. About two days are required by the new service.

REAL ESTATE SALES

The following Weymouth transfers of real estate were recorded in the Norfolk registry last week:

Katie Craig to George Pittner, Park and Weymouth streets

Sarah A. Settes to William A. Hanaford Union street.

—It never has paid to feed lice.

—Horses like pasture at any time, but it is not enough by itself to keep up the strength of work animals.

—Separate the cockerels early and sell for broilers those which are not to be kept. The early broiler catches the price.

—If laying hens are kept indoors during the forenoon on rainy days, there will be few dirty and muddy eggs in the nests.

—Uncle Ab says that at least two lives are gladdened whenever someone is a bit more generous and more kind than is necessary.

—Before making hay while the sun shines, better call up the farm bureau office and find how long the weather man thinks it is going to shine.

—Our grandmothers thought and thought before they spent; nowadays we too often spend,—and think afterwards.

—Rinse well in cold water dishes which have contained eggs or milk; hot water cooks the albumen and makes it cling to the dish.

—Aunt Ada's Axioms: Home life always has more zest when each member of the family has definite tasks to perform for the good of all the rest.

Sympathy for President In Loss of Calvin, Jr.

Sympathy for President and Mrs. Coolidge is general throughout the country in the sudden death of their son, Calvin Jr., who died Monday night at the Walter Reed Hospital at Washington. Although the death was at 10.30 P. M., thousands who were listening in on the radio knew of the sad event before midnight.

Wasted in strength by the ravaging spread of the septic poison that resulted from an almost unnoticed blister which developed on his foot while playing tennis about July 1, the youth fought a futile battle throughout Monday. Losing ground steadily, he yet amazed his physicians by the tenacity with which he clung to the slender thread of life and his fortitude under the suffering of the complications that attended the spread of the treacherous disease. He collapsed early in the night and death occurred at 10.30 o'clock.

Forced in the last hours to abandon the desperate hope they had held for his recovery, based much on the courage and fighting spirit they knew he had, the President and Mrs. Coolidge faced the end at their son's bedside. They had kept the long vigil there unbroken save for an occasional hurried return to the White House Saturday and Sunday.

So plainly showing their ordeal of sorrow, the mother and father left the hospital at once. Mrs. Coolidge had the President's arm as they walked hurriedly to the automobile to drive to the White House. As the car swung down the long avenue toward the executive mansion they were joined by another with C. Bascom Slemp, the President's secretary.

At the White House there was only the respect of withdrawal to pay as the doors were opened to receive the President and Mrs. Coolidge. The mother was joined as she entered by Mrs. Frank W. Stearns, a close friend of the family and a White House guest and her husband. The President and Mrs. Coolidge who were said to have borne up bravely, went at once to their rooms and at midnight the White House was entirely darkened. John, the elder son, who had been spared the ordeal of the last hours at the bedside of the brother who had been a constant companion, was in his room when his parents returned and remained upstairs.

Calvin Coolidge, Jr., according to White House attaches, is the first son of a President to die while his father held that office since Tad Lincoln died in his father's arms in the White House near the close of the Civil War. So far as they recall there has been no instance of a President's daughter dying during his occupancy of the White House.

The death of the son of President Coolidge marks the third successive administration in which the family occupying the White House has been visited either by death or critical illness. The first wife of the former President Wilson died in the White House and later Mr. Wilson suffered there the breakdown which left him an invalid until his recent death. Services for President Harding were held in the White House after his sudden death in San Francisco and previously Mrs. Harding had suffered a critical illness there.

Little had been seen in Washington of the Coolidge boys John and Calvin, since their father became President.

Calvin was working on a farm in Massachusetts when President Coolidge took the oath of office. He then contended that he had a contract which he had to fulfill and he kept at the job. During their time here tennis a great deal on the White House courts and had indulged in other sports of interest to two healthy American youngsters.

Calvin had become a great favorite with White House attaches who long ago decided that he was "a regular boy".

At the early age of eleven years, it is told of Calvin, he decided to carve out his own fortunes and induced his father, the Governor of Massachusetts, to help him get a job on an onion and tobacco farm in Massachusetts. He walked three miles each morning to save carfare on this job, keeping in his mind a bicycle he wanted to buy.

When he had saved $35 Calvin received his first lesson in thrift from his father, who decreed that the money must be deposited in a bank. Father and son made the trip to the bank and later the father helped with advice in the purchase. The boy gave his first check in payment.

When Calvin first visited Washington during the Easter vacation of his father's first year as Vice President, he was not as tall as his father by a head, but during the last year he had grown to be the tallest member of the White House family. He had a clean-cut, pleasing face. He was a mischievous boy and a good-natured tease at times.

On Wednesday at 3 P. M. funeral services were held at the White House Later the President and Mrs. Coolidge and son John with close friends left by the Federal Express for Northampton, Mass., where brief services were also held at the President's former home on Thursday. Then on to Ludlow, Vt., the birthplace of the President where with committal services the body was laid at rest yesterday.

Gov. Cox and his military staff were in attendance at the services at Northampton.

LUNT—JONES

One of the prettiest weddings of the season took place on Saturday, July 5, at the First Church in Weymouth, Weymouth Heights, when Miss Isabel Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Bennett Jones of Weymouth Heights became the bride of Frederick Elmer Lunt of the same place.

The artistic decorations of palms and roses against the walls of spotless white and Puritan gray made a beautiful setting for the ceremony and the "Mother" church being happy to have its first wedding within its portals since its rededication, radiated through its loveliness, the real beauty of the occasion.

At 5 o'clock strains from Lohengrin's wedding march were heard with Mrs. F. C. McDowell at the organ; the aisle was prettily ribboned off, and the bridal party entered the church, marching slowly towards the altar where the groom and best man, Mr. Lewis Keene of Danville, Maine, awaited them.

The charming bride, escorted by her father was beautifully gowned in white georgette with crystal beads, her train of georgette adding to the attractiveness of her attire. She wore the traditional bridal veil, which was held in place by orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses.

The bride's attendants in their color combination of yellow and orchid were exquisite, the matron of honor, Mrs. Helen Ries Hanscom, being gowned in yellow georgette, wearing a leghorn hat with orchid trimmings, and carrying orchid colored sweet peas; the six bride'smaids, namely Mrs. Charles L. Arnold of Kingston, N. Y., Miss Eleanor Bowker of Waltham, Miss Mary Bacon of Providence, R. I. Miss Miriam Prime of New York, Miss Doris White of Weymouth and Miss Barbara Merriam of New York were attired in orchid colored georgette with picturesque leghorn hats and carried orchid colored sweet peas.

The marriage was solemnized by Rev. Edward J. Yaeger, a former pastor of the First Church in Weymouth and now of Saugus, the double ring service being used—while Rev. Stanley Maple, the present pastor of the First Church in Weymouth, gave the prayer.

The ceremony was witnessed by over 200 friends and relatives, guests being present from Kingston, N. Y., Yonkers, N. Y.; Providence, R. I.; Rutherford, N. J.; Mechanics Falls, Maine; Waltham, Natick, Gardner, Braintree, Duxbury, Hingham, and the Weymouths.

At the reception which was held in the chapel following the ceremony, the bride and groom stood within a beautiful arch of greenery from the woods and fields, and they were assisted in receiving by the bridal party and by their parents. Not only were the newlyweds quickly greeted with congratulations and best wishes by their many friends, but the beautiful bell which was suspended over them also sent forth showers of good wishes, covering them with rose petals and confetti.

The ushers were Mr. Harry Johnson, Mr. Irving Hunt, Mr. Marshall Ries, Mr. Edwin Hanscom, Mr. Gordon Rauch, all of Weymouth, and Mr. R. Edward Bates of Braintree.

During the reception orchestral music was furnished by Orely Melville, 'cello; Mary Keith, violin; Mrs. F. C. McDowell, piano.

A wedding luncheon was served by Carroll Whitemore of Boston. One of the most interesting features was the bride's cake, which she herself cut and distributed to her young friends, some of whom discovered hidden gifts, a ring, thimble, a bit of money, etc.

The bride and groom have a large circle of friends, being members of the First Church in Weymouth, they are prominent in religious and social circles of the town and were therefore, the recipients of a large number of beautiful gifts, including cut glass, silver and gold.

The groom's gift to the bride was a crescent brooch of pearls and sapphires.

Amid showers of confetti, congratulations and best wishes Mr. and Mrs. Lunt left for a trip to Lake George and Niagara Falls, after which they will make their home in Weymouth Heights.

Telephone Toll Messages Now Free From Federal Tax

THE federal taxes laid on telephone toll messages by the Revenue Act of 1921 have been removed by the Revenue Act of 1924, which was enacted on June 2, and became effective as regards these taxes on July 2. Under the act of 1921, the taxes imposed on telephone messages were as follows:

On a telephone message for which the charge was more than fourteen cents and not more than fifty cents a tax of ..... 5 cents
On a telphone message for which the charge was more than fifty cents, a tax of ..... 10 cents

These taxes were highest in proportion to the charge for service for toll messages over moderate distances, the tax in some cases amounting to one-third of the toll charge.

We have anticipated the increased use of toll facilities that will follow the removal of these taxes and have taken the necessary steps to prepare for it.

EDUCATION

Education, the foundation of self-government, must be of a character that will fit men and women for work. The great majority of citizens will earn a living by manual work. Our system of education should supply this need by providing trade schools. Thus will manual labor be properly ecognized. Combine intelligence with muscle, train the eye and hand with the mind, and we then fit the boy or girl really to enjoy equal opportunity in life's work. Furthermore, by such education, manual labor is dignified as it should be. A trained farmer or mechanic is a far better citizen than a man whose education has made him look down upon manual labor and whose capacity enables him to be but a poor clerk.—James R. Garfield, Secretary of the Interior, 1907—1909.

President Joseph Belcher of Randolph called the gathering to order and the Rev. Houghton Page of Hingham asked divine blessing, after which there was singing and reports of the officers. The oldest Alden present was A. A. Baker, 89 years old, from Colchester, and the youngest Alden was Betsey Alden Ayers of Hyde Park, four years and two months old. President Belcher gave his annual address and a luncheon was served at noon.

MEETING OF SELECTMEN

The Selectmen met at the town office Monday afternoon.

William H. Wall of 166 Broad street was granted an auctioneer's license. Wilton A. Loud was granted a victualer's license, and Francis Cain a gasoline license on King Cove street.

The rate now is $1.42 for three years, and it is hoped to have it reduced to $1.14. The board is asking all insurance agents in town to file a request with the board for their share of the insurance. It is intended to place the insurance an equal amount with each

As the rate is-qqvbgkqjcmfwyphrd as voted in town meeting. As the rate is much higher than was expected, there is not enough money to place for a 3-year term and it will be placed probably to cover until the next annual town meeting.

The resignation of John S. Williams as a member of the Board of Health was accepted.

MARKET REPORT

As a guide to the busy housekeeper the Gazette-Transcript will publish the prices in the Boston market as of Tuesday of the week the Gazette-Transcript is printed:

What to buy at the vegetable counter: Native peas, native string and wax beans, asparagus, cucumbers, lettuce, radishes and new cabbage.

At the fruit counter: Native strawberries, southern raspberries; cantaloupes; bananas.

New on the market: Native string and wax beans; native celery; native currants; gooseberries; sour cherries; and southern raspberries; blueberries.

At the meat counter: Spring lamb and fowl.

At the fish counter: Swordfish are here. People like swordfish because there are no bones to pick out. The whole fish weighs from 100 to 600 lbs. Buy a slice ¾ inch thick for broiling. Fresh salmon, fresh halibut and fresh mackerel are also popular.

Try swordfish steak today—Place slice about ¾ inch thick on broiler and cook on both sides same as you would broil a beefsteak. Dot with butter, season with pepper and salt, and served hot with boiled potatoes it is the equal of broiled steak in nourishment and flavor. Prices will be lower as supply increases. Serve with lemon.

Note: While the careful housewife usually labels her jellies, jams, canned fruits and vegetables for her own later information, the United States Department of Agriculture suggests that if she intends to sell her products she should consult the State food authorities as to the regulations concerning weight or measure and ingredients and the proper labels to be used.

Progress Being Made At New Weymouth Station

Autoists making the trip from Boston and vicinity to the South Shore and Cape Cod have marvelled at the magnitude of the construction work on each side of Bridge street at North Weymouth. The Selectmen should cause a large sign to be erected letting strangers know that they are entering WEYMOUTH.

The first unit of the "Weymouth station" of the Edison Light Co. of Boston will probably be in use about Nov. 1, and the following write-up by Frederick D. McCarthy in the Boston Transcript will be of interest to Gazette readers:

Thirty-eight years ago last February the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston finished its new power plant in Haymarket place, the company having been formed three months before with the exclusive right to use the patents of the then young inventor, Thomas Edison.

The first customer of the venture was the Bijou Theatre, the setting being a performance of "Iolanthe", a Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, and the popularity of the vehicle was enhanced by the advertisements that the house would be lighted by "electric lamps which burned in glass bulbs". Mr. Edison personally supervised the operations in the power station for the occasion. Since that time the use of electricity has grown by leaps and bounds until the generating capacity of the company has outgrown that original plant over 3000 times.

And today we see going up a structure at Weymouth Fore River which alone will be capable of producing almost twice as much power as the present plants combined. It is said that the boiler room at Weymouth ultimately will be large enough to build three Filene stores inside of it and still leave room to deposit the Old South Meeting House in the interior.

When will this vast potential output which this magnitude connotes be absorbed? is a question that naturally arises. It is estimated roughly by officials that the new plant will enable the corporation to keep abreast of the service demands for about fifteen years hence. While this is, of course, only an approximation, evidence that the vision of the officials is not awry probably can best be adduced by reverting to the operating records of the past.

It required 28 years from the inception of operations in 1886 for the company to reach 200,000 kilowatts of connected load.

The second 200,000 kilowatts were realized in about one-fifth of that time, or in the year 1920.

More than half of the third load of this size has now been registered and the belief prevails that with the Weymouth station in operation the connected load probably will have attained a mark of 600,000 kilowatts by 1925, although this surmise may be modified by developments in the general business situation in the intervening period.

Statistics also show that the maximum load on the minimum day in 1922 was larger than the maximum load on the maximum day five years previously, in 1917, the year the United States entered the war. In the face of steady gains in power consumption the consumption of coal per kilowatt hour generated has been declining.

To Expend $30,000,000

Next autumn the company will begin operation of its new generating station, which will rank as one of the largest central electric stations in the United States, which also means in the world. It is an ambitious project as indicated by the fact that the expenditure of approximately $10,000,000 is planned to take care of the present development, and when the final programme of having ten units in operation has been carried out the company will have expended in the vicinity of $30,000,000 at Weymouth.

The company will defer the building of the two additional units until such time as the management feels that the needs of business and industry warrant the expansion. The investor properly might ask the question as to why the Edison Company is going ahead with such a programme of extensive development, but to the trained public utility official who is accustomed to look into the future and

LAWSON FOR CONGRESS

Representative Allen Lawson of Braintree informs the Gazette-Transcript today that he is a candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress in the 14th Congressional district.

Mr. Lawson has made an enviable record in the Massachusetts House, and had been mentioned as a candidate for speaker.

MORE BAND CONCERTS

The only subjects considered at the July meeting of the Business Association of Weymouth and East Braintree were band concerts and membership. In the absence of President Stone and Vice President Laing, Mr. Hall of the Old Colony Gas Company called the meeting to order and Howard Clark was elected temporary chairman. Secretary Donald G. Wilbar was on deck.

Because of lack of support some were inclined to give up the weekly band concerts, but it was finally decided to continue through July, and after that was left entirely with the executive committee. Committee chairmen were appointed for the various booths and attractions.

Voted to hold the concert of July 29 at Webb Park with a bonfire, local band, local soloists, etc. The committee has the promise of over 100 railroad sleepers for the bonfire. The opinion prevailed that the concerts should be better advertised.

Question was asked as to who were members and how much was in the treasury, but the treasurer was absent, and the question could not be answered. It is said that several have dropped out. Only 20 were in attendance at the meeting.

Previous to the business meeting a supper was served in Lincoln hall by Mrs. Olive Percy, including turkey, salad, rolls, iced tea, and canteloupes.

Community singing of popular songs was led by Mr. Hall with Miss Margaret Hartrey at the piano.

DOG SHOW JUDGES

The officers of the South Shore Kennel Club, which holds its annual show on Aug. 30,—in conjunction with the Weymouth Fair,—have announced the judges for practically all breeds.

Boys desiring to enter the competition should send their applications before August 1 to E. M. Ricker, High school, East Weymouth.

AUTO TOURS

The tours of the Hollis Auto Co. offer Weymouth people an attractive way to visit the White Mountains, the Mohawk Trail, Plymouth, Provincetown, Newport and other resorts

SERIOUS ACCIDENTS

Florence Norkewicz of North Weymouth is at the Weymouth Hospital with a possible fracture of the skull and internal injuries as a result of an auto smash at South Boston on Monday, says a Quincy paper.

Miss Norkewicz was a passenger on an auto that was driven through South Boston at the rate of 50 miles an hour and finally ended at a telephone pole at H and 7th streets.

The girl was riding on the rear seat. Victor Sokoluk of 17 Ward street, North Weymouth, who was driving the machine, escaped unhurt except for a battering given him by a man who is charged with assaulting him. According to the police the trouble started when a man named John Patrick jumped on the running board and began to hammer Sololuk. In the struggle, the driver accidently stepped on the accelerator, causing the speed of the car to be greatly increased.

AUTO ACCIDENT

Three autos were in collision on Saturday near the junction of Ralph Talbot street and Pleasant and were so badly damaged that they had to be hauled away.

Mrs. Beulah F. Gardner of East Weymouth realized that she was in danger and stopped her car, but it was probably a mistake, as the fruit truck of Raymond Barba of Hingham and a Moon touring car driven by Peter Fallon of South Braintree were soon in collision.

Atkins Rich of Hingham, who was riding with Mrs. Gardner, was seriously injured, possibly a fractured skull.

DAILY VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL

The Daily Vacation Bible School, conducted jointly by the Methodist and Congregational churches, has been running one full week with great success. The work and programs of the school as well as the interest of the children is far beyond expectations. To be present and watch the work of the various classes is to know that such work fills a long felt need in the lives of these children. And the best part of it all is that the children themselves are very much in love with the school.

Word has come to some of the committee in charge that this school is beng conducted for those children who are backward in their public school work. That is not true. In the first place this school has no connection whatever with the public schools of the town. In the second place it is a religious school, as the name, Daily Vacation Bible School clearly indicates.

The aim of this school is to give every boy and girl an opportunity to acquire a Christian education, and to develop their character and religious life. This will be achieved by Bible study consisting of stories and hymns, hand work, and directed play. The children will be asked to act out a number of the Bible stories. The week, during the period given over to hand work, the junior boys are building a house and the junior girls are furnishing it. The Bible and religion is the background for all the work.

Visitors are welcome at any time. Anyone will find it very profitable to spend a morning watching the school at work.

There is still opportunity for other boys and girls to enroll in the school. However, no enrollments will be received after July 28.

SUMMER PLAYGROUND

An inovation that should prove popular with parents and children was started at Webb park and the Hunt school playgrounds, Monday and will continue for four weeks. The first five days of the week from 9 to 12 A. M. and 1.30 to 3.30 P. M. an attendant will be present to supervise the games and sports. Miss Helen Galvin will be in charge at Webb park, and Miss Helen Pray at the Hunt school. The project is made possible through the generosity of Joseph Kelley of Washington street Weymouth.

TOWN AND VICINITY

Weymouth Shoe Firms Exhibit Some Novelties

The Stetson Shoe Co. of South Weymouth; Alden, Walker & Wilde, Inc. and Edwin Clapp & Son, Inc. of East Weymouth, have booths at the National Shoe and Leather Exposition at Mechanics building, Boston.

Two eyelet ties for both men and women are shown in the Stetson Shoe Co. booth, other features are a golf shoe made up in the new Airdale tan, three eyelet ties and saddle strap oxfords. R. E. Sherman of the factory is in charge of the booth, assisted by Mrs. Nellie Ash and R. H. Green.

A French model in a black patent leather vamp and a cream buck top is the leading feature of the Edwin Clapp & Son, Inc., exhibit. Another departure from the regular material is a black cordovan dance oxford made up for the college trade. There is a new patent French enamel made up on the firm's new Buckingham last. An attractive line of women's shoes is included.

Attendants at the booth are: Guy P. Moses, S. Preston Moses, Charles W. Hauser, Shelton Haux, A. C. Ludham and R. L. Summers.

The Alden, Walker & Wilde, Inc., booth displays a fine line of men's and women's shoes in the latest leathers and styles.

YEAST IS SALVATION

"The baby chicks may be smart little fellows from strong parent stock", reads a government bulletin on poultry raising, "and they may have been brooded carefully for the first two or three weeks, but unless they receive proper care and management during their later growing period they will not develop properly, and many of them will be lost by sickness or disease."

Realization of this fact has led to recent widespread experimentation in the feeding of growing chicks. With the aim of "uniform, continuous growth from hatching time to maturity", as a popular authority puts it, investigators have successfully worked out very effective feeding programs.

In these new formulas, yeast, a relatively new element in poultry rations, has an important place. And the benefits achieved by adding it to the feed for baby chicks have been so remarkable that many poultrymen think it will soon become a regular part of chick mashes wherever careful feeding is carried on.

And yet, they say, there is nothing mysterious about yeast-feeding. There are definite reasons for its amazing effect on growth and health.

First, it supplies, in the most highly concentrated form in all nature, the essential B-Vitamin, the vitamin of growth. Second, it acts on the other food in a way similar to digestion itself, making it easier for the chick to turn its food quickly into energy and flesh and sturdy bone.

There is small wonder, then, that poultrymen who have tried yeast feeding are so enthusiastic about it. It has solved for them their only real problem. Housing and care are influences on the baby chicks' development, which they have always been able to control. But proper feeding, they say, was an insoluble question until they began to add yeast to the feed.

GOOD RAIN

Weymouth was on the edge of the thunder shower yesterday afternoon and escaped the heavy thunder which visited other parts of Massachusetts but there were good showers which were very much needed by vegetation. They also brought a drop in temperature, last evening being cool, and today delightful New England temperature prevails.

A Boston paper reports that five persons were killed, scores were injured and property was damaged to the extent probably of more than $1,000,000 by thunder storms which swept large sections of New England yesterday,

Lightning, hail, wind and rain scourged particularly the Merrimac river valley. Lightning struck in scores of places. Hail smashed greenhouses, beat down crops, broke windows, automobile windshields and tops, and actually pounded holes in roofs.

Blue Hill observatory recorded wind at 36 miles. During the day there were more than a dozen showers in New England.

MARKET REPORT

As a guide to the busy housekeeper the Gazette-Transcript will publish the prices in the Boston market as of Tuesday of the week the Gazette-Transcript is printed:

Most price changes were again downward. Beans were more plentiful and lower with a slight draggy tendency. Cabbage and cucumbers slightly weaker due to holdovers from Monday. Good peas scarce and in better demand.

Butter, tub, 45c—49c; print 48c—50c.

Cheese, mild and Young America 29c—31c

Lard, 15c—23c

Eggs, Western 32c—36c; Selected Western 37c—43c; Eastern 45c—49c; Nearbys 55c—58c.

Try this Cherry Pudding—One qt. sour cherries; ¾ cup sugar; ½ cup water. Stone cherries, add sugar and water and cook slowly until tender.

Two cups flour; ½ teaspoonful salt; 4 teaspoonful baking powder, one tablespoonful butter. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Cut in butter and milk enough to make a stiff dough. Roll or pat one inch thick on a lightly floured board.

Bring cherries to boiling point and lay biscuit mixture on top. Cover tightly and cook 12 minutes.

DIVORCE WANTED

Orville H. Sterling of Weymouth petitioned the Norfolk county probate court this week for a divorce from his wife, Gertrude Sterling, on grounds of cruelty and unfaithfulness. They were married Dec. 27, 1904, and have six children. The petitioner desires custody of the children.

ROTARY CLUB

A round table talk followed the weekly banquet of the Weymouth Rotary Club Wednesday noon at Pythian hall. President Charles G. Jordan was in the chair.

White and Black for Neat Outfit

Combination Affords Attire Much Admired; Sash and Tie Are Features.

It is now almost de rigueur to have the costume all of one shade, or as nearly so as may be, notes a fashion authority in the New York Times. A gown of beige, gray, brown or black has a hat, shoes, stockings and gloves to match. A frock of black and white and black may have the accompaniments white or black, preferably the latter, at least in the item of shoes. Some attractive little jersey suits of white have with them a hat of one color, or combination of colors, and a scarf, the lining of which matches the hat.

In the establishment of one prominent importer is shown a sports suit of white flannel, in which a touch of scarlet is introduced. A sash of scarlet is introduced. A sash of scarlet crepe is wound about the soft silk blouse at the line of the hip, and a monogram is embroidered on the pocket flap on one side of the jacket. A width of the crepe is wound about the milan sports hat, and the stockings and shoes of this gay little outfit combine white suede and glace kid.

The Roman sash in all its distinction is being revived in most attractive ways. Long ago, we are told, every nice young girl had a Roman sash, or several Roman sashes, which she wore about the waist of her white muslin frock. The width and length of that sash were regarded by her contemporaries as a gauge of the wearer's importance as a personage in her little world of fashion, and some of these gorgeous colored ribbons have been preserved as something precious by the older women of today, who find them a high light in the latest styles.

Sash lengths with ends trimmed with fringe matching in strands the colors of the sash are worn knotted at one side of a gown, holding the draped material, or about the low waistline. The finished lengths are also used as neck scarfs, adding a gay, colorful note to a black gown or one of plain color, and hats, particularly the panamas and other sports hats, are smartly trimmed with "Roman" ribbon wound tightly about the crown.

The larger shops are offering a great variety of these Roman ribbons in every width from the sash to the inch-wide, which is meant to be used as a band on tailored hats, as a necktie on the one-piece frock and blouse, and as a narrow belt.

Next in the display of ribbons are the rainbow-shaded ribbons. They are lovely, an artistic achievement in color harmonies. In some of the sash widths rainbow colors are beautifully blended, and in others one color is softly shaded from dark to light with charmingly decorative effect.

Following the heavily brocaded metal and repousse effects in ribbons introduced during the winter, these new versions of a quaint style form an important feature in the spring and summer wardrobe.

Match Accessories

The smart woman has decided to have her accessories match so far as possible. Today her fan matches her little evening wristbag, often in both color and materials, and her shoes match her fan. All these are often in a color sharply contrasting with that of the gown.

Air of Simplicity

Every effort now is bent toward simplicity in frocks. The lines are straight and simple, and the whole air of the costume is that of avoiding heaviness and overelaboration.

LEGION AUXILIARY

The monthly trip to West Roxbury Hospital was made Tuesday and was South Weymouth day. Mrs. Mowry and Mrs. Denbroeder were in charge and friends of theirs, who were also friends of our service boys, gave generously of fruit, candies and good things for the boys. Accompanied by the Welfare chairman, Mrs. Draper, Mrs. Mowry took the things in her car and the trip as usual was a mingling of pleasure and sorrow. The hospital is well kept and situated, but the sadness of its need always dims the delight of its situation.

This month the meeting of Norfolk County Council will take place on Saturday, July 26. The committee will arrange for the luncheon and let every member try and be present at the meeting in the afternoon. It is interesting to hear what other units are doing and compare the work of the local auxiliary with theirs. One can learn what is necessary to do and the best way to do it. Let's make it 100 per cent attendance.

CHAUTAUQUA

The guarantors of the Weymouth-Braintree Chautauqua for 1924 met at the Clapp Memorial building Monday evening. In all probability this is the last guarantors' meeting until the opening of Chautauqua on August 20. All plans were completed and all committees were appointed and the ticket sale and advertising campaign has begun.

The trustees of the Davis Bates Clapp Memorial Association have granted the use of the Clapp Memorial field and building for the holding of Chautauqua again this year. These splendid facilities go far in making the local Chautauqua a success.

M. R. Loud, J. Herbert Libbey and W. G. Henley were added to executive committee. Mrs. Newman Page, who served so efficiently as chairman of the Junior Chautauqua last year was elected to the same position for this year.

The grounds committee is composed of George F. Farrar and C. R. Bestick. Other committees were appointed as follows: lighting, Sidney G. Dunbar; hospitality, Mrs. Nancie M. Ames; transportation, Elijah Whiton; good fellowship, Mrs. Mabel Jones; Sunday program, Rev. K. A. Handanian.

Frank M. Bryant as chairman of the ticket committee announced the sub-chairmen for each district. Each sub-chairman received his ticket allotment and he in turn distributed the pro rata share of tickets to each guarantor. The ticket sale is now on:

Ten new names were added to the list of guarantors making a total of ninety. It was the sense of the meeting that a strenuous attempt would be made to make the number of guarantors an even hundred.

John T. Cahill, advance representative of the Swarthmore Chautauqua Association, captain of the Columbia University debating team, was then introduced.

In his opening remarks Mr. Cahill called attention to the many new towns now on the circuit, including among others, Portland, Bangor, Montreal, and Quebec. Chautauqua at this date, he remarked, is just opening in St. John, New Brunswick.

After complimenting the Weymouth-Braintree guarantors on their very fine showing on the occasion of the 1923 Chautauqua, Mr. Cahill commented critically on the high spots of this year's program as follows:

"The first day opens with the Blue and White Marimba Band from the New York Hippodrome—a premier attraction playing popular numbers. The Marimba is a Central American instrument which has attained great popularity in this country in the last few years. This company has recorded many of its selections for the Victor Company.

A dramatic impersonator of the Will Rogers type, Noah Beilharz, holds the platform on the opening night and puts on a screamingly funny program of impersonations.

Second afternoon and evening prelude are given entirely by a classical company of three virtuoso artists. This organization has toured New Zealand and Australia all last winter in company with John McCormack, the famous Irish tenor. Mr. Arthur Kennedy, the cellist, is a noted symphony soloist. Miss Constance Johns is a colorature soprano, making her debut in this country. Melbourne and Sydney critics have called her the best since Melba's time.

The Canadian soldier author, Private Peat, writer of the book by that name, lectures on the second night. Peat's lecture is called, "The Inexcusable Lie" and is an appeal to do away with war. Peat, because of his war service, is particularly well qualified to make such an appeal. This lecture has taken the towns thru which the circuit has passed by storm.

A trio of girl sopranos, The Swarthmore Trio, give a program of Crinoline songs on the third afternoon. The costume settings of this company are particularly beautiful. That night Powell, dean of American magicians, past master of the black art, holds forth. Forty years of platform experience enable him to put on a program that causes his audience to sit on the edge of their seats thruout. One of Mr. Powell's tricks includes firing a bullet thru a girl and exhibiting the bullet after the shot has been fired. The person fired at is usually unharmed.

An orchestral quintet of rare merit give an afternoon and evening program on the fourth day. This company is one of the best instrumental companies that it has ever been the pleasure to bring out. Hon. Quinn O'Brien, a leading criminal attorney of Chicago, is the attraction on the fourth night and conducts an open forum during his lecture in which he answers any challenge that may be made by one of his auditors. Elbert Hubbard, great American publicist, lost in the Luscitania catastrophe, termed Mr. O'Brien one of the six great orators in the world.

Mrs. Josephine Dominick has the fifth afternoon given over to her for a talk entitled "Well Dressed on a Moderate Income". That night the prize play "Their Honor the Mayor" is given by Moroni Olson and company. The play is a winner and the cast entirely from New York. This play will be produced in New York after it has finished its run on the Chautauqua circuits as was true in the case of "Crossed Wires".

Closing afternoon this year is children's afternoon. Frederick C. Trappe, ventriloquist, dramatic impersonator, and noted child entertainer gives a program entirely for the kiddies.

The climax of the seven joyous days is capped on closing night when the Russian Cathedral Sextette put on their program. This company are incomparable in their work. Four of them were members of the cast of the opera at Kiev prior to the political overthrow in that country. The first part of their program treats of the peculiarly beautiful liturgy of the Russian Church. The second half is given over to folk songs and operatic selections. This company surpasses any similar company that we have had on tour.

Remember ladies and gentlemen in your ticket campaign the words of President Coolidge, "Chautauqua is the Ford of the entertainment world. a rattling good article and moderately priced".

RULES FOR AUTOISTS

Drivers of cars should read and obey these rules, and live to cross safely many crossings.

Remember never to race a train; the road may suddenly turn across the tracks.

Remember to let the train that has just gone by get out of sight before crossing; another may be coming from the opposite direction.

Remember, if the track is not visible in both directions slow down till you have a clear view.

Remember if a train is in sight, don't undertake to cross. Your anxiety to ge across may unnerve you. Wait!

Remember, there has never yet been a crossing accident that couldn't have been avoided with proper care.

Remember not to depend entirely upon the watchman. A mistake may cost him his job—but your life.

Remember, double tracks provide for trains in both directions.

Remember, crossings signs are for you, not the railroad. Watch them.

Remember, the law gives the right of way to railway trains at crossings.

Remember to "Look out for the engine". The rest should be easy.

If all motorists would use one hundredth part as much care to protect themselves and their passengers at grade crossings as the railroads do to protect them not a single accident would happen. It is clearly up to the drivers of motor cars in a majority of cases if they meet with injury.

Keep Same Pressure in Hottest Weather

A timely warning to autoists against reducing the air pressure in their tires during the hot summer weather is now particularly opportune. This fallacy is common among motorists who do not understand that radiation carries off any surplus heat that might otherwise be dangerous to the life of a tire.

Even during the terrific grind of the race track, when tires undergo the most gruelling punishment, this principle holds. It is underinflation even during the hottest days that ruins more tires than any other cause. The facts are that recommended air pressures are safe even in the summer.

By reducing pressure, the increased flexing of the tire merely creates the condition which the car owner wishes to guard against. The motorist can well afford the time needed to gauge the air pressure in his tires for the sake of greatly increased mileage.

Garage Hoist and Rack Is Handled by One Man

Oil drums in garages are usually placed on racks a few feet from the floor, but considerable difficulty is often experienced in lifting the oil drums up on the racks. A simple hoist for this purpose, which can easily be operated by one man, is shown in the illustration. It consists of a winch arrangement attached to one end of the rack. A large gear is keyed on one end of the winch and a small gear, meshing with the larger one as shown, has a handle attached so that the winch can be turned.

A skid is hooked to the rack for the drums to be rolled on, which is accomplished by means of two ½-inch ropes, attached at one end to the winch and at the other end to the rack. These ropes must be long enough to be passed around the drum when it lies on the floor close to the skid. Winding the winch then rolls the drums up over the skid and onto the rack. The top edges of the rack are notched for the drums to rest in, so that there will be no danger of them rolling off.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Big Danger to Battery During Summer Weather

Hot weather, just like extremely cold weather, is a danger period in the life of any storage battery unless the proper care is given it. Summer weather probably is the most dangerous time the battery must pass through because the automobile is used more during this period.

Motorists as a rule are prone to forget or neglect keeping the battery filled with pure distilled water in hot weather. Evaporation of the water in the solution in the battery during hot weather is rapid. If the level of the water is permitted to reach a point below the tops of the plates, the upper portion is left exposed and useless. The covered portion of the plates are then obliged to assume the extra burden of the useless portion. This causes rapid overheating and damage not seen at the time, but which results in considerable expense later.

NEVER KNEW HE KNEW

By CORONA REMINGTON

(©, 1924, McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Who's that little thing in pink draped over Willis' arm?" asked Louis Maxwell laughingly.

"Faye Langston; nice dancer, isn't she?" remarked a bystander.

"Uh-huh, nice in a good many ways I expect. I want to meet her. You know her?"

"Sure. We went to high school together. She graduated two years after me though. Come on over and I'll introduce you, now the music's stopped."

When Maxwell looked down into the happy, excited face of Miss Langston for the first time he knew that he had met his fate, that she was the only girl in the whole world who would ever mean anything to him again.

"I think it's rather wonderful our—our meeting," said Maxwell aimlessly when at last they were seated in a secluded corner. "Tell me all about yourself, do. It's the quickest way to get acquainted."

"There isn't anything to tell," she answered. "I live at home with my parents and have a position at the Minton Furniture company as stenographer. Now tell me all about yourself."

Maxwell had forgotten himself, his very existence so entirely for the time being that it was with a peculiar sinking feeling that he remembered the letter in his coat pocket notifying him that he had just one more week in which to make good, and, if at the end of that time he had not sold an unmentionably large amount of shoes, his services would no longer be required. He made a silent prayer that Faye was no mind reader and plunged in:

"I'm a traveling salesman for the McIntyre Shoe company, good business and good money in it."

"Isn't that great! I know you're very successful. I can tell by your manner."

"You flatter me," he replied in just the right tone of voice.

"No, but there's something about the way a man walks and carries himself that tells you a lot about him," she went on, her eyes bright with interest.

Maxwell moved uncomfortably.

"You know an awful lot for a little bobbed-haired flapper," he chided. "Shall we dance that one?"

It was two or three hours later that Maxwell as last found himself in his hall bedroom, sitting on the edge of his bed and staring at the intricate patterns of the wall paper.

"Hang it," he exclaimed under his breath, "Whatever made me ask her to dinner and the theater next Wednesday? And where will I scrape up the money? I can't back out; she'd drop me quick if she knew the real state of affairs. Darn it all, why does a fellow have to make money, anyway?"

He gripped his hands and continued his gloomy introspection. Why hadn't he been born rich? Why hadn't his father been a professional man instead of a bookkeeper? If only he had been somebody else; if everything had been different. But to come down to the thing at close range, why hadn't he been able to sell those plagued shoes? And now that things were as they were what was he going to do about it? Should he resign from the McIntyre Shoe company and try something else or should he go sell the blamed things?

By three o'clock that morning he had decided to stick it out with McIntyre. It would be awkward explaining to Faye why he had resigned, so he caught an early train for Waterview and all the way out there worked up a good line to feed his prospective customers. If other fellows could sell shoes he could too—and sell them he would!

His first customer was a hard one. He did not want to listen. But Maxwell was determined to get him, so after three hours of talking and waiting and arguing the owner, manager and sales force of the Waterview general store clapped his hand over his bald spot and yelled at Maxwell:

"Yes, yes, send me three cases and git out o' here and git quick!"

It was uphill work and nobody really seemed to want to buy shoes; they all had to be convinced of the importance of it, but when Maxwell headed for the hotel that night he felt that he had done a good day's work.

On the evening that he took Faye out to dinner and the theater afterward, he thought that he had never been so happy before.

"You're just wonderful," she told him, "and such a generous spender."

"Lots of fellows spend more than I do," he remarked modestly. "By the way, can we have another little party next week?"

And the moment that he had said it he would have given anything to have been able to recall it. Already in debt, his board falling due in two days and another fool invitation! How he would have to work! Why couldn't he keep his crazy mouth shut? Anyway, he'd never do it again, he silently vowed.

But of course he did, every time. That is the way it goes, yet after a while he found that even so he was making more than he was spending and before long he was able to save enough to warrant his asking Faye to marry him.

"You're a dreadfully expensive little thing," he told her, "but I love you and can't imagine what life would be without you."

"If you really want me you can have me," she told him demurely.

"Want you? I love you more than anything on earth," he answered, taking her into his arms.

"And I love you, too," she answered quite simply.

It was almost eight o'clock when looking up she exclaimed:

"I guess it's time I got my hat on if we're going out to dinner."

And it was while she was upstairs that he noticed a letter lying on the floor and, stooping to pick it up, saw his name in a girlish scrawl across the sheet. The temptation was too great and he read it.

"Dearest Faye:

"Aren't you glad I have a position with the McIntyre people so I can keep you posted about Louis? You've been the making of him and he's sold ten times as many shoes since he met you. He's doing well now and if he gives you a chance I'd marry him. You certainly seem to love him a lot anyhow. It's funny the way you made him take you to the expensive places for dinner. He had to make money to save his face."

"The little fraud!" Maxwell exclaimed under his breath, "To think that she knew all the time!" And strange to say he was not angry, he was rather amused. "But she'll never know I know," he ended, dropping the letter to the floor again and turning to the open fire.

Women Still Allowed Their "Shaving Money"

An allowance of "shaving money" to women may sound like an essay in cheap humor, but there is an English institution that has made such provision for its women inmates for many hundreds of years, says London Answers. No other place in the world makes this curious payment to women.

This institution is the ancient Hospital of God's House at Southampton, a semi-religious foundation, that is a kind of almshouse for indegent persons who were once in fair circumstances.

"Brothers" and "sisters," too, are received as pensioners on its bounty, and women as well as men are given a quarterly allowance of "shaving money." The amount is not great, but it is quite enough to pay a barber with.

That is the purpose for which it was originally given. Do not infer from this that the hospital was founded as a retreat for bearded ladies, or that the women of former days had chins less smooth than their short-skirted, free and independent voter great-great-granddaughters. True, they were "treated on an equality with the men" in the matter of "shaving money," a "woman's right" that none of the fair sex today would feel inclined to claim, save only the few of them who are entitled to it as "a matter of succession." But there was a reason for that.

When this quaint grant was first instituted, the barbers combined surgery and medicine with chin scraping. In its origin, therefore, the "shaving money" was really intended to cover the cost of medical attendance. But it has always been paid to the women as "shaving money."

Another singular feature of the Hospital of God's House is that the church, which forms part of it, has two separate endowments, and two ministers, each of whom speaks a different language from the other, while two distinct forms of service are held.

A Church of England service is conducted by the chaplain for the brothers and sisters, and then a Huguenot service is conducted in French by a French pastor for a congregation of those who reside in the town.

Buttermilk Channel

Governors island in New York harbor is separated from Long Island by a deep arm of water called Buttermilk channel. It is believed that at one time the smaller island was connected with Long Island. At any rate, back in the days when Van Twiller was governor the channel was so narrow and shallow that cattle could wade across it. The only boats which could navigate the channel in the early days were flat-bottomed craft which drew little water. Such boats as these regularly made trips across the channel carrying buttermilk from Long Island to the markets of New York. Hence the name, Buttermilk channel.

Co operation

The other night as I sat before the fireplace I noted that the stick of wood, although it was a fine, dry piece of oak, was not burning. I tossed another piece of wood beside it, and in a moment both burst into flame. What is it the Bible says to the general effect that it is not good for man to be alone? A man, no matter how good his quality, must mix with others if he would express himself most efficiently. One stick would not burn. Two sticks together sent out light and heat. There are sermons in fireplaces as well as in running brooks.—Forbes.

Meaning of "Catholic"

"Catholic" is from the Latin "catholicus," which in turn is from the Greek "katholikos," meaning universal or general. The Greek word is compounded of "kata," entirely, and "holos," whole. We speak of a person with a catholic mind, meaning that his tastes and views are liberal and comprehensive. Catholic, capitalized, now generally stands for the Holy Catholic Apostolic and Roman church. With the small initial letter the word is still widely used in its original sense of universal.

TREMONT THEATRE

Only two short weeks remain of the very successful summer engagement at the cool Tremont theatre, Boston, of the Sissle and Blake colorful entertainment, "In Bamville", ere its New York premiere. Many special matinee parties have been arranged for the Thursday midnight and Saturday afternoon performances. This s by far and away the best and most enjoyable musical comedy offering seen in Boston in years. The large organization of 125 clever Dixie funsters forms the pick of the theatrical profession each and every one chosen for his or her particular talent. "In Bamville" is graced by the fastest stepping, singing and dancing chorus in all the world. Foreign terpsichorean importations pale in insignificance when compared with the Sissle and Blake bewitching brunette beauties.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks to neighbors and friends for their beautiful floral tributes and kind acts of sympathy in our recent sorrow.

MRS. JOHN CULLEN,
and family

—TO MY MOTHER—

I wonder, Mother, if you know,
How I want you at this hour,
The soft wind sighs, the sun is low,
And I dream of days of yore.

If I could hear you answer me,
As oft I try to speak to you,
My soul would swell in ecstacy,
My spirit soar with love so true,

To meet you then! but I must wait
Till God shall take me yonder,
Then we shall meet—I have Faith,
And Hope—As in prayer I ponder.

Nearly 6,000 People At Legion Field Day

Considerable interest was taken in the annual field day on Saturday of Weymouth Post, American Legion, and it is estimated that there were over 6000 paid admissions to the Fairgrounds.

In addition to the sports there was a midway that did a good business, vaudeville shows on a stage in front of the bandstand, concerts by the Legion band, while the Ladies Auxiliary served refreshments in tents.

The fireworks in the evening were particularly good, the best seen for some time. One of the set pieces was a battleship and submarine exchanging shots.

The Essex car given away was awarded to Ben Houivet of Lake Crest.

Baseball

A rubber game between the Owls of North Weymouth and Old Colony lodge of Odd Fellows of Hingham resulted in a 13—4 win for the former.

The junior game was closer when the South Weymouth Juniors defeated the Braintree Scholastic team 8—7.

Wrestling Bouts

The wrestling bouts were much enjoyed. They were arranged especially for the benefit of the patrons. There was one bout staged that was a hummer. This was not on the card, but those who saw it say that a lot of action took place in a short space of time. Lanky Carl ——— caught Bryan ——— in a friendly grapple. Pretty soon the promenaders on the midway wondered what it was all about. The huskies were locked in a fond embrace. Heels and legs went flying into the air in front of one of the booths. In less time than it takes to tell it both combatants hit the earth with a dull, sickening thud. Carl's shoulders were pinned squarely to the roadway. Both arose with grins on their faces, and also South Weymouth dust. They shook hands, and the incident was closed.

The Trotting

Those who have not attended any of the weekly matinees of the Old Colony Driving Club now realize that they have missed some exciting sport. In addition to the twelve classes there was a half mile chariot race, seldom seen except at the large circus. In this event there were two entries, Samuel Hall and Ralph Brett and the former won, which was exciting while it lasted.

Another novelty was Quality Bun, the driveless wonder, who went over the half-mile course without a driver. There was also trick riding by George Hall, 11-years-old, and Charles Hollis, which was something new.

The fastest half mile trotting was by Rector D. Stetson's black gelding, Dallas in 1m, 5s.

In classes C, F, G, H and I three heats were necessary to decide the winners:

MEETING OF SELECTMEN

The Board of Selectmen held the regular weekly meeting Monday afternoon.

Charles Y. Berry was appointed a special police officer.

A petition was received from the Weymouth Light and Power Co. for permission to erect five poles and remove four poles on Commercial street; to erect four and remove two poles on Athens street, to erect two and remove one on Essex street and to erect one on Webb street. A hearing will be held.

Petitions were received from Percy D. Sargent for a gasoline filling station at the corner of Washington and Federal streets; from Thomas Hannifford for a filling station at 80 Pond street, and from Isadore Bloom for a four-car private garage on Broad street. Hearings will be given.

A letter was received from George F. Whitmarsh, secretary of the Pond Plain Improvement Association asking that the hearing on the petition of Joseph Janell for a garage on Pond street be held in the evening instead of the afternoon. As the hearing has been advertised for the afternoon it will have to be held at that time.

The Wessagusset Yacht club was granted a public amusement license for the season.

Patsy Rosey was granted a fish, fruit and vegetable license.

Percy D. Sargent was given a permit to move a 10x16 building from Hollis street to corner of Washington and Federal streets.

The Ladies Auxiliary was granted a permit for a lawn party at Franklin school grounds July 19.

The clerk was instructed to call on the trustees of the Massachusetts Street Railway Company, and ask that the poles on Pleasant street be removed, some of which are in a very dangerous condition. The condition of the poles has been brought to the attention of the railroad authorities several times, and it is now imperative that they be removed before a bad accident occurs.

Chief of Police A. H. Pratt stated that it was hard work to get enough men for the police force, although the positions pay $35 a week with two weeks vacation and one day off in 8.

A joint meeting of the Selectmen and the Board of Health was held, and Dr. Lewis W. Pease was chosen to fill the vacancy in the Board of Health caused by the resignation of John S. Williams.

—They say the average span of life in the last 150 years has doubled because of increased knowledge of improved living conditions. Do you make use of that knowledge?

—Don't waste tears or language on castors that keep dropping out. Fill up the hole with paraffin, put the castor in while the paraffin is still soft, and never be troubled again.

—Beginners are likely to water their gardens unwisely. More hoeing and less watering would usually give better moisture conditions. Frequent light watering causes the surface to bake and draws the roots toward the surface where they later dry out and perish. If watering is really needed, do it thoroughly so that the ground is soaked, loosen the surface as soon as it dries sufficiently and then do no more watering for a week or so.

THE OVEN METHOD IS EASY AND CERTAIN

Cook by packing jars on lower oven rack instead of in boiling kettle. Keep oven temperature at 250° F for same length of time as for boiling.

BEETS

Use small beets—after washing, boil for fifteen (15) minutes on top burner of gas stove, skin and cool. Pack in sterilized jars, add one teaspoon of salt in each quart jar, fill with boiling water to within ¼ inch of top, put on sterilized rubber and top but do not seal. Put in gas oven on lower rack with oven at 250°F. Be careful jars do not touch each other. Keep at this temperature for 1½ hours, remove jars, seal and invert for 10 to 12 hours, to be sure it is tight. Keep in cool dark place until ready to use.

If your oven is not equipped with a heat control a Taylor Oven Thermometer may be used and control the gas supply by hand.

anticipate the power and light requirements of communities it is a logical procedure in view of the tremendous growth of the utility industry in the past and the assurance that even greater strides will be taken in the years to come. Each year brings greater demands for electricity, annual expenditures in the United States for additions to generating and distributing facilities exceeding $500,000,000.

The L Street Edison station in South Boston with its capacity of 260,000 horsepower has been hard pressed at times to keep up with the requirements of the consuming public and officials will breathe easier when the load is relieved by the opening of the new Weymouth station. The ultimate capacity of the latter will be 400,000 horsepower. The stations will be linked up and thus the Weymouth plant will greatly augment the capacity for service without disturbing existing conditions. There is a small station in Atlantic avenue which was built many years ago. From the new station main lines will be constructed south and west and north into the territory now served from L Street. The Edison Company operates in a district embracing 700 square miles extending as far west from Boston as Hopkinton, as far south as Sharon and as far north as Waltham. No less than 85 sub-stations are numbered in the system to distribute the powerful now of current which will be generated at Atlantic avenue, South Boston and Weymouth.

Ideal Location for Plant

Curiosity has been aroused as to why a site so far distant from the heart of Boston was selected for the erection of the new central station of the Edison Company. "Why are you building the new generating station at Weymouth?" is the query which has been frequently propounded to officials since work was begun on the big job. Various elements entered into the decision of Edison executives in this matter.

In the first place a new station, serving a great metropolitan community, must be built where the electric current can be transmitted to its territory along the lines of least resistance. Thickly populated districts must not be disturbed.

From Weymouth electricity can be despatched straight into the territory of present and future growth, avoiding densely settled Boston entirely. Furthermore, it is fairly clear that with continuous growth of Greater Boston the years will not be long in elapsing when the site of the plant will not be considered as remote from this city.

Turning to engineering phases of the problem, any steam generating station on our coast must be placed within easy access of the ocean so that barges can carry coal to the property without hindrance from shallow water. Fore River with its deep channel,—deep enough to accommodate the large battleships which have been constructed at the Bethlehem Steel Corporation's shipbuilding plant which lies directly across the strip of water from the Edison location—offered the only desirable site for the station within about 35 miles of Boston, New Bedford being the next nearest spot which could afford similar facilities. Another important point in favor of the Weymouth selection is that there is an unlimited supply of salt water available for condensation purposes at no cost but the taking. The final consideration was the fact that the company was enabled to secure some sixty acres at Weymouth, which assured adequate opportunity for expansion in years to come.

Fourteen Acres of Made Land

Of this acreage about fourteen acres constitute made land. Practically the entire area where the coal supply will be stored has been reclaimed from the sea or has been brought down from the adjoining hillside by levelling the grade twelve or fifteen feet.

Hundreds of thousands of cubic yards of sand and gravel have been utilized to raise acres of mud flats well above the highest tide. While steam shovels were accomplishing this task on land, massive dredges drew the sediment from the bottom of the river and discharged it in gushing streams behind the bulkheads which outline the channel limit. In this manner, as the channel was deepened and the hill levelled off, a plateau was created where only mud and water once had been.

On this surface 300,000 tons of coal are to be stored to feed the boilers of the plant. (At L street 100,000 tons can be stored.) In front of the bulkhead a wharf has been constructed on which is located a trestle for coal-unloading towers.

The channel will be 28 feet in depth so that it should be capable of taking care of the largest boats that can come up from the outer harbor for many years. A travelling bridge will span the storage pile, and a system of belt conveyors will be provided for transporting the coal to or from the main storage and directly from the unloading towers to the station bunkers. The conveyor for delivering the coal to the station will be about seven hundred feet in length including a tunnel under Bridge street. The travelling bridge is to carry a trolley with bucket for reclaiming from the storage pile, and a breaker will crush the coal on its way to the station.

Gravity System

The coal which will be used at the plant is mined in West Virginia, so that it will be hauled by rail to Norfolk or Newport News and thence shipped direct to the wharf at Weymouth. It is unloaded electrically and is either placed in storage or is distributed into bunkers over the boilers, a forty-eight hours' supply being furnished for each boiler. Gravity is utilized to send the coal down spouts into hoppers and thence into the stokers, where it is automatically pushed into the furnaces. The ashes will drop through clinker grinders into ash hoppers and the accumulation will be removed by trucks or by railroad cars. A remarkable feature of the coaling operations it that the fuel will not be touched by human hands from the time it is mined until the residue of ashes is disposed of.

Incidently, while on the subject of generating electricity by the use of coal it is of interest to state that the report made to the Associated Industries of Massachusetts by its Power Investigating Committee in April on the power situation in New England, made the point that notwithstanding the potential hydro-electric power to be obtained in Canada and elsewhere, Massachusetts and other New England States must continue to depend in great measure on coal for the additional power which will be needed in future years. While it is to be desired that the black coal should be supplemented with the white, the development of waterpowers will not put an end to the use of coal. It may serve, however, to restrain rising costs of the product of the mines.

TWO TURBINES IN FIRST UNIT

While the autumn will witness one-third of the projected units in operation, the operations will represent only one-fifth of the turbine capacity. That is the unit now building will contain two turbines as compared with the ultimate plans for ten turbines.

Each unit will have eight smoke stacks projecting 266 feet into the air above mean low water, which is 45 feet higher than Bunker Hill Monument. Lightning rods are set on top of the stacks, and "fool-proof" ladders have been attached to the sides of the chimneys. The men will mount the ladders on the inside and it has been demonstrated that if one should grow faint or lapse into unconsciousness for any reason one could not drop more than two or three rungs before being caught up.

There is no need of inhabitants of the surrounding territory becoming agitated over a smoke nuisance, as the potential consumption of coal at the plant has been so carefully analyzed from a scientific standpoint, with a view to securing the greatest possible amount of energy at the least possible expenditure, that smoke will rarely be seen emerging from the chimneys.

Many new machines and new economies in building are being installed at Weymouth to secure the maximum efficiency and economy of operation. Probably the outstanding innovations are the installation of a single boiler to carry steam at pressures up to 1200 pounds and the erection of a switch house separate from the Station, so tha if by any chance there was an accident or some other unforeseen contingency at the station it would have no effect upon the employees in the switch house.

This latter might be called the heart of the plant as therein are installed the amazing devices for the control of the electric service. The boiler referred to above will have practically the same heating surface as the normal pressure boilers.

The steam generated by it will pass through a pressure-reducing turbine developing about 2000 kilowatts, and will be exhausted at a pressure of 375 pounds. After being reheated to the orginal temperature of 700 degrees the steam will be piped to the main header and used in the large turbines.

If satisfactory results are obtained from the high-pressure boiler-turbine units more of them will be put in. Three will be required to furnish steam to operate one of the 32,000-killowatts units, of which latter two will be installed at present. It is the belief of the engineers that the high pressure system will be very economical, and the opinion has been ventured that power can be produced as economically at Weymouth by steam as it could be by a hydro-electric project on the St. Lawrence river. The station units will be divided so as to reduce to a minimum the danger of destruction.

Gives So Much "Velvet"

The high-pressure system might be said to give the station so much "velvet" or free pressure. After the high pressure accomplishes its work in the turbine and gradually loses its force in so doing it is exhausted at a pressure of 375 pounds, which is the normal gauge of the other boilers, and is then reheated and used over again along with the steam generated by the other turbines.

The great power of a boiler generating steam at 1200 pounds per square inch may be gleaned from the fact that it is five times that used in the most powerful locomotive and about three times the pressure ever used before in a large power plant. Certain sections of the boiler have the strength of ordnance. The boiler drum will be 34 feet long with walls of solid steel four inches thick.

Current will be generated at 14,000 volts, with three-phase, 60 cycles. It will be distributed from the station through underground circuits partly at generator voltage and partly at 25,000 volts through an adjoining outdoor transformer substation. Future transmission by overhead lines at 115,000 volts will also be provided for. The cables will be laid under Fore river.

RANGERS WIN

In the first of the three-game series between the Rangers and Weymouth T. T. which took place Sunday on the Humphrey school grounds the Ranger A. A. took the game by shutting out Weymouth by a score of 8—0. The Town Team was helpless against the wonderful pitching of Fisher who allowed but three hits. Horgan was the only man to reach second base for the Townies. The Ranger batters hit Warburton so hard that he was taken out in the second inning. Barron replaced Warburton and was hit just as hard the Rangers getting 15 hits in four innings. The game was called in the fifth inning on account of rain.

Dallasandro Fisher, Lonergan, Dalto, Gunville led the Rangers at the bat, the rest of the boys doing fine work in the field. The score by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	R	H
Rangers	2	2	2	2	x	8	15
Weymouth T. T.	0	0	0	0	0	0	3

Batteries, for Rangers, Fisher and Gunville; for Weymouth T. T., Warburton, Barron and Horgan.

The Rangers will play the fast Crystal Bottling Co. of Brockton on the Humphrey school grounds on Sunday, July 20, at 3.30.

NO BILL FOUND

No bills were found against Simon Swig, his son, Benjamin H. Swig, and his son-in-law, Benjamin Greenburg, all charged with larceny and conspiracy, by the Suffolk County Grand Jury in its report Saturday to Judge Quinn in the Superior Criminal Court.

The circumstances surrounding the attempt to indict the Swigs are that several weeks ago Jeremiah Sullivan of Cambridge told a police inspector that his proof of claim for deposits in the Tremont Trust Company, of which Simon Swig had been vice-president and Benjamin Swig treasurer, was missing.

On learning of the complaint Simon Swig on two occasions visited the office of Dist. Atty O'Brien and requested to be allowed to go before the Grand Jury which finished its term of service on June 30. Mr. O'Brien denied the request.

The matter was then turned over to Asst. Dist. Atty. Frank S. Deland, who presented the case to the new Grand Jurors.

Mr. Sullivan declined to testify against the Swigs and Greenburg. It is understood that Sullivan said that the proposed action was a mistake; that he had received his money, and had no grievance with the Swigs.

KATHERINE B. SEIZED

Another rum-running boat attempted to make up Weymouth Fore river on Saturday. A Boston paper reports its capture as follows: A solid shot from the custom launch, Dreamer, forced the motorboat Katherine B., suspected of rum running, to round to in Quincy waters early Saturday and inspection of the cabin revealed 100 cases of Cuban alcohol valued at $3000. Occupants of the boat were: L. G. Murray and George Barrs of Quincy. Arraigned in Federal court before United States Commissioner Jenney Saturday, charged with conspiracy to smuggle liquor, both men pleaded not guilty. They were held in bail of $2500 each for hearing on July 22.

The Dreamer, in charge of Deputy Surveyor Thomas Finnegan, sighted the Katherine B. while about to enter Fore River. The chase followed and the boat was headed into shoal water to avoid capture when the one-pounder on the Dreamer's bow was put into action. Saturday the cargo was transferred to the appraiser's stores, Northern avenue, Boston, and the Katherine B. took her place among seized craft at the army base.

The Federal Telephone & Telegraph Company installed federal type 61 receivers in the various Elks' homes. Sets were placed in Quincy lodge, Revere lodge, Woburn lodge and Boston lodge. On the big night of each lodge when a special celebration was in progress, a Federal man was on hand to insure expert operation of the set.

NEW PRESS—NEW BUILDING

Although the handsome new building of the Patriot-Ledger at Quincy is not completed, presses and linotypes have been installed and the first edition was printed on the big new press on Tuesday, when the paper appeared in new and attractive form. About Labor day the new building will be open for public inspection. It has been built to meet the needs of a daily paper for many years to come, and the publishers and the city are to be congratulated.

—More attention to shrubbery, flowers, and lawns, will make many a farm home more home-like and less homely.

—Right after the hay has been drawn is a good time to pick up those stones that bothered the mower in cutting it.

—One small pane of window glass will keep many a smudge off the pages of the cook book.

—Before you decide to paper that dingy room, try sweeping down the walls with a clean broom, finishing them off with a dry cloth. It may save a papering bill.

Live Towns and Dead Towns
The Live Ones Advertise

Often we hear of live towns and quite as often we hear of dead ones. What makes the difference? The answer to that question is "Advertising", according to a recent bulletin of the department of agricultural journalism at the University of Wisconsin which tells in the following how advertising can be developed by the country editor:

In some towns we have all heard of merchants who are asleep on the job. Then there is the merchant who realizes what an attractive store and fascinating show windows mean, but overlooks the even greater possibilities of reaching members of the community regularly through the newspaper. Lastly there is the merchant who backs up persistent and effective newspaper advertising with an attractive and service-rendering store. He helps to make the town live. An example of the last kind of a store is one in Minnesota which does a business of $200,000 a year and is located in a town of 971. The brothers who run this store say that the farmers are the best buyers, but they have to be shown.

Advertising has been defined as the selling force which puts into action all the other selling forces. It is influencing people to act favorably on a proposition. "Newspaper advertising is the most profitable form of advertising." Lloyd D. Herrold, formerly in charge of instruction in advertising of the university extension in Wisconsin, says, "Because of its universal appeal, its timely copy, and its frequent appearance." What a mighty tool the retail merchant has then, if he uses it properly, in the country weekly. The time is coming when he cannot prosper without furnishing this service of advertising to his customers and other people of the community. Good roads mean that the farmer will motor through the town whose merchants do not cater to his needs and to the town where the merchants want his trade.

The merchant must look for more than just direct returns from his advertising. Advertising serves in other ways besides selling the goods featured in the advertisement. It builds good will, an asset which has real worth. The area which the store serves extends out farther, and the neighborhood grocer can become through proper merchandizing the market center of the community for as much as ten miles around. It is an investment and not an expense when properly handled. The laborer is worthy of his hire, however, as many successful merchants have found out. It builds prestige for the store and secures the confidence of the farmers. It educates them to expect certain special services. Goods are turned over more quickly and new steady customers obtained.

The merchant must, therefore, carefully prepare his copy for his advertisements with these results in mind. No two stores are the same; it must be his endeavor to develop an individuality and personality for his store, and make the community feel it through his advertising. Many merchants feel that they have a mighty good store; it is up to them, then, to tell folks about it.

The advertising salesman on the weekly paper is not asking for charity, nor is he merely selling white space to perpetuate the newspaper, he is rendering the merchant a real service when the proper advertising is inserted in the paper.

In the same way the merchant not only benefits himself and his store when he follows a definite advertising program, but he benefits the community and furnishes a necessary service to the farmer. It is through this medium that the farmer learns of new goods, new machinery which will help him, etc. New uses for old goods are discovered. He finds an establishment which is catering to his needs and one where he can go and receive fair treatment. His standard of living is raised, thereby bringing about more satisfaction and happiness.

The country weekly has to lead the way in this program to keep the life blood of the community flowing. A merchandising service which will help the retailer to get results is indispensable.

AUTO ACCIDENT

Three young men were injured on Sunday afternoon when the coupe of William Thurston was in collision near the junction of Commercial and Middle streets, with a Ford coupe operated by Gaetano Fucci of Lake street. The latter car was turned over on to the sidewalk and Alfred Dutson of Station street was pinned beneath it. Two others, Joseph Romantene and Charles Costine were also injured.

Dutson was taken to the Weymouth Hospital where he remained until Wednesday. He is now at home but confined to the bed, possibly internally injured. At the hospital Romantene had 22 stitches taken in his ankle and Costine also had two stitches.

East Weymouth Also
To Have Branch Library

The trustees of the Tufts Library announce today that the new branch library at East Weymouth will be opened next Monday in the new Garey building opposite the Town Office.

Several years ago public libraries were established at Weymouth and South Weymouth, and a few years ago North Weymouth was favored with a branch of Tufts library. Although East Weymouth is the largest ward of the town it has been without a public library until now.

The new East Weymouth branch is already well stocked with volumes, and the trustes will probably be surprised at the demand from borrowers.

The branch will be open five days a week, every weekday except Wednesday from 2 to 5 and from 7 to 8 P. M., in charge of Miss Martha

ANNUAL COUNTRY FAIR

The annual Grand Country Fair by the Parish of Trinity church was held last Saturday on the grounds of Crag Cliff, residence of the rector, William Hyde, Weymouth Heights. The usual number of attractions were held, the following being in charge:

Japanese rolling balls,—Mrs. J. H. Pflaumer

Ring the canes, —Philip Wolfe

Cafe,—Mrs. Charles Beltring, Mrs. Louis Ells, Mrs. Clement Bates, Mrs. Sarah Hoffses, Joseph Sewall, and Mrs. Harold Knudson

Mystery table,—Miss Nellie Chase and Mrs. Herbert Pray

Fancy and useful articles,—Mrs. Thomas Payne, Mrs. Joseph Forsyth, Mrs. S. Woods, and Mrs. John Kelly

Candy,—Miss Nellie Cain, Mrs. Philip Wolf, Miss Virginia Hawkesworth

Ice cream and tonic,—Thomas Forsyth, H. C. Conlan, Joseph Forsyth

The interesting feature of the afternoon was the children's costume parade. The characters included clowns, Indian boys, fairies, flowers and were all very attractive, some being very clever as well as artistic. Each of the eighteen participants received a silk flag as a prize, and those receiving special prizes were Priscilla Adams, impersonating Bo-Peep, Ruth Lentz, Bluebird; Helen Sullivan, Rainbow; Marie and Agnes Galligan, fairies; Louis Bradford, Indian boy; Nancy Adams, daffodil.

The judges were Joseph Forsyth and Mr. Craig.

The evening session opened with a goodly number present and everybody patronized the many tables and enjoyed the many attractions.

The feature of the evening was Paul Smith's five-piece orchestra. The selections rendered were greatly enjoyed and dancing was a part of the program.

The Grand Country Fair met with its usual success, both financially and socially, and with weather conditions ideal the occasion was most pleasing to the many who had worked hard to make it a success.

Vacation School Children
Interested In Gazette Plant

Townspeople and friends are always welcome at the office of the Gazette-Transcript, but a more interested group never dropped in than that of Wednesday when twenty or more juniors who are attending the Daily Vacation Bible School came on a tour of inspection. They were accompanied by Miss Harriet Yarrow, the principal, and Miss Beatrice Warren, one of her assistants.

Instantly the type setting machine known as the "linotype", which sets a solid line of type, engrossed their attention, and they marveled at the manner and the speed of the machine. Each child was presented with a line which they saw set which read "Good morning, children!" Some remarked that the letters were upside down, but were told that all letters were "set" upside down so that they can be read from left to right as in a newspaper.

The big newspaper press was in operation, and the children saw how the Gazette-Transcript is printed four pages at a time. An electric motor supplies the power. The ink is fed from a fountain, and well distributed before the form is rolled. The paper is the size of form pages, and one sheet is "fed" at a time, at the rate of 25 to 30 per minute. A "fly" delivers the painted sheet at the rear of the press. Later, when the other side of the sheet is printed, the Gazettes are folded by machine, which does not always trim them as it should.

A job press was in use, printing a large flyer at the rate of a thousand per hour.

The children were much interested; they saw how type is "set" by hand, linotype slugs, after they are used, how the columns and pages are "made-up". They did not see how are remelted and made into "pigs", because it was not melting day.

The editor told how news and stories are gathered and edited; everything has to be proof-read and corrected, often times in a very limited time, for it is important that the paper should go "to press" on time, that they may be mailed to subscribers on time. Ten minutes delay may cause a day's delay in delivery.

With cheers for the Gazette, and thanks to the editors and employees the children returned to school. Come again!

On Thursday the children visited the shoe factory of Edwin Clapp & Son, and were again much interested in what they saw. These tours of inspection have a great educational value and the vacation school children are fortunate in having a principal who arranges these tours.

GREATER EGG YIELD

In all the experiments in poultry feeding there has been the search for something that would benefit the fowl throughout its life—something that would lower mortality and promote growth in young chicks, bring growing birds into early laying, keep egg production constantly high, make molting a short period, and invigorate the birds so that their eggs would be fertile and hatchable.

Now, according to men who have been experimenting with it, yeast—preferably dry yeast, which keeps indefinitely and is convenient to use,—supplies that needed something.

Poultry men who have been adding yeast to their mashes (and the practice is widespread today) report most amazing results, not only in one, but in every department of poultry husbandry. Fertility of eggs is increased says one. Quick growth is promoted, says another. Egg production is boosted, says another. And so on.

Take, for instance, Rodney de Lisle of Langley Prairie, B. C. He compared the egg production of a yeast-fed lot with a lot on an ordinary good ration and observed a remarkable difference in egg production in favor of the yeast-fed birds. And he found other benefits besides.

"By feeding yeast", he says, "I was able to cut down the protein content of other rations,—I cut down the protein content of the mash by 25 per cent,—used more bran and reduced the cost of my feed, the protein content of which is, of course, the most expensive. The yeast-fed birds are unquestionably better developed and have more vitality, apart from their increased egg production."

Results like these are encouraging poultry men more and more to add yeast to their feed. Many already look upon yeast-feeding as the most valuable contribution to poultry husbandry in fifty years.

MRS. EDITH E. BISHOP

The community extend their sympathy to Stillman M. Bishop and sons in the death of Mrs. Edith E. Bishop, which occurred at the Weymouth Hospital on Tuesday, July 22, where she had been receiving surgical treatment for only a week.

Mrs. Bishop was born Oct. 1, 1877, in Westbrook, Maine, the daughter of the late Orland Littlefield and Catherine Plummer. On September 30, 1906, she was married in Nashua, N. H., to Stillman M. Bishop and ten years ago with their two sons, Herman S. and Willard E. came to South Weymouth to reside.

She was a member of Wessagusset chapter, 192, O. E. S., and of the Women's League of the Old South Union Congregational church of South Weymouth. In both of these societies, Mrs. Biship was an interested and active worker, having served in various capacities on the committees during her residence in town. She was also actively engaged in school affairs, and it was largely due to her efforts that the "King Tut" pageant, given by the pupils of the Edward B. Nevin school in the Fogg Opera Building in observance of Memorial Day a year ago, was so great a success. A woman whose sympathies were always extended to any who were in sorrow or trouble, her loss will be keenly felt and as a worker in the societies with which she was affiliated she will be sorely missed.

Funeral services will be held in the Old South Union Congregational church on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock the pastor, the Rev. Francis A. Poole officiating, and the service of the Eastern Star being conducted by Mrs. Dorothy Brown, W. M., and suite. Samuel V. C. Holt will be the soloist and the interment will be in the Mount Hope cemetery.

Besides her husband and two sons Mrs. Bishop is survived by a brother Willis E. Littlefield of East Milton and a sister, Mrs. A. H. Dunn of Fort Collins, Colorado.

GRAND ARMY CONVENTION

Grizzled old veterans, heroes of the war of other days, will march the streets of Boston for the last time during the week of Aug. 10—16, 1924, at which time will be held the 58th National Convention of the Grand Army of the Republic.

In order that their visit to the Hub may be one long to be remembered, Mayor James M. Curley, as chairman of the Executive Committee has outlined a program which will open wide the gates of hospitality of the city.

It is estimated that the convention will draw at least between 40,000 and 50,000 visitors, including delegates from every state in the United States and from its various possessions.

More than 10,000 veterans, in their uniforms of blue, will take part in a monster parade on Tuesday, August 12, through the principal streets of the city. A monster reviewing stand has been erected on Lafayette Mall, Boston Common, where Gen. Gaylord M. Saltzgaber, Commander-in-Chief of the G. A. R., and the National G. A. R. officers, Governor Channing Cox, Mayor James M. Curley and other dignitaries will review the parade.

An elaborate program has been mapped out by the Executive Committee which includes band concerts, a pageant at Braves Field, fireworks display, harbor trips, auto rides to historical spots, including Lexington and Concord.

Monday, August 11, has been set aside for tree planting. Mayor James M. Curley will plant a tree—one for each department in attendance, on Boston Common.

Housing accommodations are completed, which will take care of every delegate to the convention.

A welcome to all is extended by the Executive Committee to visit Boston during the convention week and partake of the city's "open door".

The "Stranger Within Our Gates" will be accorded a glorious welcome. Come and lend your hand to make the last National Encampment of the G. A. R. that Boston will ever witness a huge success.

Growth and Vitality depend on this one thing—

NO matter what type of bird or animal you raise—no matter how scientifically you feed them—the big question is:

How fast can they turn that feed into flesh and vitality?

If you can find a natural way to speed up digestion and assimilation—to help the animal get the last ounce of nourishment out of every pound of feed—your profits will grow accordingly. And that is exactly what Fleischmann's Pure Dry Yeast does!

This remarkable food-accessory, added in small amounts to the regular daily ration, helps to transform that ration quickly and easily into good solid flesh and healthy energy. Not a bit of nourishment is wasted—and in addition, Fleischmann's Pure Dry Yeast supplies the essential B-Vitamin (the vitamin of growth) in the most highly concentrated form available in all nature.

The results are startling: faster growth—increased vitality and fertility—heavier egg-production for poultry—blue-ribbon winners for fanciers. Scientific breeders the country over have proved the power of Fleischmann's Pure Dry Yeast. It is now on sale right here in town—a trial can will be the best investment you ever made. Come in and get a free booklet on this modern method of animal feeding.

PAVED ROADS SOLVE SHIPPING PROBLEMS

Motor Truck Loaded With Cattle for Market.

Transporting live stock to the market is much less of a problem than it used to be, now that the country is building extensive systems of paved roads. Adequate paved roads enable the heavy use of motortrucks at all seasons and under all conditions of weather, and by use of these trucks live stock can be hauled to market quickly and economically.

All Markets Benefit.

Virtually all the important live stock markets of the country—Chicago, Kansas City, Indianapolis, Omaha, Sioux City, St. Joseph, Mo., and South St. Paul—now benefit greatly by this method of shipping animals. The Indianapolis stockyards, in the supplying of which this method of shipment is used to the greatest extent, have received as many as 6,800 head of stock a day by motortruck.

Many stock raisers, who do not ship all the way by motortruck, but depend on trains to carry the stock part of the way, have found that the motortruck is the most satisfactory way of getting the stock to the train. The animals reach the market in much better condition than they would if they were driven many miles to a railroad for loading. This method also saves a great deal of time.

Valuable for Hogs.

In the shipment of hogs the motortruck method is especially valuable in hot weather, for many hogs die of heat when shipped long distances by train in the summer.

With good concrete roads, equally good at all times, the farmer may make rapid shipments at the time when he can get the price for his stock.

WATCH STEERING GEAR CAREFULLY

Merely Necessary to Keep Joints Well Greased to Operate Properly.

According to automobile accidents headlined in the country's newspapers the steering gear of every automobile should be painted a horrible bloody red.

But are the newspapers right? Does the steering gear really go wrong and cause two-thirds of the motorcar accidents? If it doesn't why should it be made the goat so generally?

Yet here we are scaring our motoring friends into the belief that they can never tell when the steering gear will go wrong, giving the manufacturers a black eye, and shirking our own responsibilities. But between you and me the thing is getting to be a joke, because when we blame the steering gear as the cause of our accident, people are likely to glance at one another sideways and give a knowing wink. And they are the fellows who watch their steering gears and inspect them carefully. Then again they watch their driving more and do not turn the wheel wrong when the steering gear is doing its work properly. Hence it is easily seen why some of us are willing to blame the steering gear—in other words, to pass the buck.

Keep Joints Well Greased.

To keep the steering gear operating properly, it is merely necessary to keep the joints well packed with grease, or graphite and grease mixed half and half. The housing which holds the reduction gears at the bottom of the steering column should be packed with grease at least three times a year. The ball joints at one end of the drag link must be kept greased because the lubricant leaks away from them rapidly, no cover being provided. These require frequent attention.

The ends of the tie rods are usually fitted with bolts and these, too, must be kept well greased. The steering knuckle pins also need regular attention. Always keep in mind that the various steering units are always in constant motion, that every vibration produces motion in the steering column. Thus the need for lubrication is very evident.

Cause of Hard Steering.

Does your car steer hard? Then here is the reason: The knuckle pins, or king pins, have become dry, resulting in a certain amount of binding. Hard steering is the result. Oil these every day, or every two weeks if graphite is used.

Don't adjust the steering system to compensate for wear unless you are positive of the location of the trouble. If wear occurs in the knuckle pins, it is useless to compensate for it by adjusting the steering gears. If the drag link is bent it naturally must be straightened, for this causes stiff steering. There is an adjustment nut to take up wear in the reduction gears, and this is right above the gear housing at the bottom of the steering post.

Your instruction book will illustrate exactly what parts are included in the steering gear of your particular car. Study it and proceed according to its advice.

Duty of All Owners to Keep Bolts Tight

Every automobile owner should apply a wrench to every important nut and bolt on his car at least once a month. Nuts held by cotter pins may be ignored but those held by loose washers should be tried with a wrench. A loose part may easily wreck a motor car and cause loss of life.

Many sermons are preached at the motorist on the subject of proper lubrication. There is one part of the car that should be kept properly lubricated regardless of what may happen. This is the steering column. This unit is most vital of all to the safety of the driver and the passengers. It is more than important—it is essential—that the steering gear be kept properly oiled all the time.

Modern Way of Carrying Live Stock to Market

Here's the way the modern English farmer carries live stock to market. This is a motorcycle with the customary sidecar removed and replaced with a crated pen.

How Stone Bruise Will Affect Automobile Tire

As a matter of fact, the term "stone bruise" is a mere figure of speech and should not be taken too literally. Tire people use the term perhaps too freely in referring to all those injuries that occur upon the surface of the casing and do the real damage to the inner part of the carcass. Rupture by shock would be a far better term and probably would be far better understood in all sections of the country. A "stone bruise," or rupture by shock can be caused by the tire hitting a stone or other obstruction in the road when traveling at a fair rate of speed. Or it may be caused by the casing coming in more or less violent contact with a garage door, a railroad track, a rut, or, in fact, any one of a thousand objects with which our roads are littered, either by the action of nature or by the intent or the carelessness of man. How often have you seen a man place a stone behind the rear wheel of a car stalled upon a hill until he could make his motor behave or until he could effect a temporary repair. However, when he started off he could not take the stone with him nor could he run back and kick it aside. The stone is left there to bump the tire of the following car.—H. W. Slauson, in Leslie's.

1,2,3,4,5 Years—Still a Young Car

The Willys-Knight is a car you can keep and enjoy for years. A touring car with all the thrill of 42 horsepower—a car you can drive 50 miles and more an hour, hour after hour—without over-heating—without loss of power—without engine trouble—without carbon cleaning—without ever needing valve grinding.

The Willys-Knight sleeve-valve engine is the most powerful engine of its size ever built—and the quietest—and the only type of engine in the world that actually improves with use. It is common for Willys-Knight owners to report 50,000 miles and more without spending a cent for repairs on the engine.

CLOSING OUT SALE

The Cooper Quality Shop, 1 Granite street, Quincy, formerly George W. Jones' men's furnishing store, has been closed this week, making ready for a big "cleanup sale" which began today and will continue until the present stock is disposed of. Following the sale the store will be entirely remodelled and stocked with a new and seasonable line of goods.

Prices have been slashed and thousands of dollars' worth of high-grade advertised brand of ladies' and men's shoes, hats, shirts, underwear, etc., will be sold at less than actual cost prices. Every article in the store is being marked down.

Original cost of goods is not being considered, the one idea being to dispose of the present stock as quickly as possible that work may be begun on the remodelling and restocking of the store with new goods. It is the purpose of the new owners to dedicate every feature of the store to that sort of attention that makes satisfactory service.

CHAUTAUQUA LECTURER

One of the feature lectures at the Weymouth-East Braintree Chautauqua will be by Edward F. Miller on "The Divine Right of Government."

In the old "divine right of kings" days a man who cried out against anything the government did, got into exceeding trouble. He went to gaol, —maybe he went to the scaffold. Then the king could do no wrong, so called.

But today things are turned right around. These are more nearly the "divine right of people" days and the kings are our hired men. So since the people are sovereign, they can say what they please about their hired servants, the government and the government has got to stand for it.

The struggle for the freedom of speech has been going on for ages, gaining inch by inch as martyrs have suffered for it. It helped to bring the American Revolution. The Sedition Law was a final throe of the struggle. A despotic and corrupt government would stifle all discussion, a right government has little to fear from any discussion.

The result of the changed condition is sweeping. It gives all speakers as well as writers greater freedom of discussion. The lecturer need not fear to be frank and say what he thinks. The highest tribunal of our Democracy says that the people are sovereign, that officials of government are servants and that the citizen in his sovereign capacity has a right to discuss and criticise his government without fear of being called to account in the courts, so long as he does not advocate violence and sedition.

In these days the "divine right of kings" is given little or no consideration. Yet Mr. Edward F. Miller in his lecture on the second night of the coming Chautauqua program will lecture on the "Divine Right of Government". He will discuss in a popular and practical way the function of Government and will point out what constitutes Democracy's right to endure. Mr. Miller is a courageous crusader for those things which make for a bigger and better world. He was trained for the ministry and spent ten years in important New England pastorates.

For several years Mr. Miller has given his entire time to Chautauqua work in both the lecturing and directing phases. He has always been interested in the social sciences, and wherever he has lived he has succeeded in making practical application of his theories by identifying himself closely with community activities. Mr. Miller in his lecture brings a vital message to the Chautauqua platform.

Laban Pratt, a Benefactor Dies at Age of Ninety-Six

Laban Pratt, a benefactor of Weymouth, died last Friday at his home in Dorchester at the advanced age of 95. He was the son of the late Captain and Mrs. Norton Pratt.

Until 18 years of age Mr. Pratt made his home in Weymouth, later moving to Pope's Hill, Dorchester. He was interested in the welfare of Weymouth and the memorial gate at the Old North cemetery is one of his gifts. He also gave the town two drinking fountains, one of which is located at the junction of North and East streets, and the other at Commercial and Church streets. He also contributed liberally to the First church and for the upkeep of the Old North cemetery.

Mr. Pratt was engaged in the lumber business at Neponset for many years, his wharf being on the Neponset river near the Neponset station, the business being established by his father. When the railroad raised the grade of its tracks and put in four tracks, it took over much of Mr. Pratt's property and he retired from active business.

Mr. Pratt was at one time, and for several years a member of the park commission of the city of Boston. He was a member of Union lodge, A. F. & A. M., of Dorchester and a charter member of St. Stephen's Royal Arch chapter of Quincy, and also a Knight Templar.

Mr. Pratt had been in remarkably good health until six weeks ago when he fell and fractured his hip. Since that time he has failed.

Funeral services were held at his late residence, 54 Boutwell street, Dorchester, on Saturday afternoon, the Rev. Adelbert Lathrop Hudson of the First church of Dorchester officiating. In attendance were delegations from the Masonic organization and the Pilgrim Quartette sang. There were several handsome floral tributes.

Burial was in the Old North cemetery at North Weymouth where Mr Pratt caused to be erected some years ago a handsome monument which is conspicuous from North st.

Mr. Pratt leaves a sister, Mrs. Mariana Potter of South Braintree, and the folowing neices and nephews: Arthur E. Pratt and Mrs. H. P. Voorhees of Commercial street, Weymouth Heights; Mrs. Lincoln Pratt, of Middle street; Mrs. Oakes Brigham Miss Nellie Potter and Norton P. Potter of South Braintree and Mrs. Marion Rhodes of Portland, Maine.

Band of Gypsies Driven Out of Town

It takes the Weymouth police force to run a tribe of gypsies out of town. Seven automobile loads arrived in South Weymouth on Monday, but that night the police routed them out.

It seems they agreed to pay $10 for permission to camp on the H. A. Richards estate on Main street near the junction of Washington street, but they only paid $5 down. They made it unpleasant for Mrs. Kelsey at the gasoline station and other neighbors, so that the police were notified. Chief Pratt considered the gypsies undesirable squatters and with fifteen men descended on the camp, refunded the $5, and drove them out of town about 10 o'clock at night. No particular remonstrance was made. The gypsies are said to have come from Cleveland Ohio, and they had automobiles with registrations from different western states.

The gypsies went to Hanover Four Corners, and it is said the State Police drove them out of that town.

Chief Pratt is to be complimented on driving them out of town so quickly. One of the men had nine children

Knights of Columbus Outing to Fairhaven

Weymouth council, K. of C., held its annual outing last Sunday. The party was in charge of Joseph A Fern and Thomas T. McCarthy, grand knight. A longer trip than usual was made this year.

William Doyle experienced his first "blowout", which delayed his getting under way on schedule time, but at 11 A. M. the last of the fifty members making the trip were speeding toward Ft. Phoenix park, Fairhaven, with several miles between the first and the last auto parties.

Weather conditions were perfect, and the fifty miles were made without mishap. Members of the council kindly donated the use of their cars, which made a big time possible with a minimum of expense. In fact it was said by many to have been the most enthusiastic outing yet arranged by the council.

Fairhaven is across the harbor from New Bedford. The resort was made popular by the late Henry Rogers, the multi-millionare oil man. His late residence is pointed out to every new comer to Fairhaven. The house was artistically immense during his life but since his death it has been cut up into several large residences. The site overlooks the harbor. The Rogers High school and stadium also excited curiosity and favorable comment. It was a gift to the town of Fairhaven from Mr. Rogers, and is a marvel in architecture.

At Ft. Phoenix a clambake was served under a huge tent. Hearty appetites did full justice to everything on the menu. Turning back the hands of time to the days of the early settlers, it was told that Ft. Phoenix park was the site of the fort of that name. It was here that the brave pioneers successfully repulsed an attack by the Indians.....

When the bake was served, Louis Daniele played his ukelele, while songs were sung.

Those who brought bathing suits were given the use of a tent. Hundreds were in line at the bath houses and this convenience was appreciated. The water was remarkably warm to those who are in the habit of bathing in the chilly water of Nantasket. There were diving facilities. A copper shute, resembling a sand slide, in which the bather shoots down into the water, was popular. A person can sit down, lie down on the back or stomach, or in any manner, and shoot into the water like a bullet, with little or no danger of injury. This was crowded at all times.

Two auto parties of members crossed the bridge into New Bedford and were entertained by members of New Bedford council. Places of interest in the city were pointed out.

At the appointed time the return trip was begun, and the party bid a fond farewell to fair Fairhaven.

RANGERS ON TOP, 5—3

The Ranger A. A. defeated the fast Crystal Bottling Co. of Brockton on Sunday at the Humphrey school grounds to the tune of 5—3. The game was exciting and kept the fans on their toes every minute. Although the Crystals put up a game fight, they could not take the lead from the local boys.

Fisher twirled a wonderful game for the Rangers allowing six hits, while the Rangers hit Barcus and Sweeney for twelve hits between them. A Mauro and Frank Lonergan did fine work in the field. Gunville and Dalto and Rossetti did well with the stick. The score by innings:

Rangers	2	0	1	0	0	1	0	1	0	—5
Crystals	0	1	0	0	0	1	1	0	0	—3

Batteries, Rangers, Fisher and Gunville; Crystals, Barcus and Sweeney and F. Chesnut.

For an attraction Sunday at the Humphrey school grounds the Rangers will take on the fast East Boston A. A. This team is a whirlwind and a good game may be expected. Starts promptly at 3.15.

CANNED FRUIT

—FINE ENOUGH TO GO TO THE FAIR

Remember what pride our Grandmothers took in peaches canned whole and fitted into the jars with studied precision. And cherries of the richest red in luscious syrup! And great plump pears with the stems on, spiced with stick cinnamon!

Well, it meant hours and hours over a sizzling hot cook stove to produce these county fair winners, but today fruit is canned in the oven—you don't even have to watch it! Think how easy! Isn't it a shame not to fill your shelves when fruit is so abundant and sugar so cheap!

CANNED IN THE OVEN—

The easy way

This is one of the greatest accomplishments of "time and temperature" cooking. All you do is prepare the fruit and make a hot sugar syrup; place fruit in the sterilized jars; fill with syrup, adjust lids loosely and set in the gas oven. The heat control gauge maintains a certain oven temperature for a certain length of time. Then the canning is finished.

Canned Cherries and Pineapple

A most delicious combination—a tempting winter-time dessert.

Pit the cherries. Pare and dice the pineapple and scald 3 to 5 minutes. Sterilize jars and new rubbers as usual. Place fruit in jars, a spoonful of each alternating. Fill jars with hot sugar syrup and adjust lid loosely.

Set oven heat regulator at 250° and preheat oven for 10 minutes, then place jars on lower rack of oven as for cake baking. Leave regulator at 250°. Quart jars should remain in oven one hour and pint jars 40 minutes. Remove; tighten lids and turn jars upside down until cool.

"None knows the day that friends must part.
None knows how near is sorrow;
If there be laughter in your heart,
Don't hold it for tomorrow.
Smile all the smiles you can today;
Grief waits for all along the way.
To-day is ours for joy and mirth;
We may be sad to-morrow;
Then let us sing for all we're worth,
Nor give a thought to sorrow.
None knows what lies along the way;
Let's smile what smiles we can to-day."

WEYMOUTH, JULY 25, 1924

MEETING OF SELECTMEN

The Board of Selectmen held an exceptionally busy session on Monday There were several hearings on applications for gas stations and garages, and there was opposition in some cases, particularly so regarding the license asked for by Michael Sweeney for a filling station on Bridge street. The board voted not to grant the license.

Licenses were granted Alice Wagner for a six-car garage on Pleasant street; George Cunniff for a filling station on Washington street; Luther Files for a filling station on Pleasant street; the Gilligan Associates for a filling station on Main street, and Jeremiah Pitts a garage at Athens and Bridge streets.

Permit was granted the Norfolk County Agricultural Society for its fair at South Weymouth Aug. 29, 30 and Sept. 1.

The bond of Tax Collector Sampson for $25,000 was approved.

It was voted that the estates of John Holley and Clinton and Martha Pope be placed in court for settlement. The former in charge of the public administrator, and the latter placed with the town counsel for action by the heirs.

A petition was received from the Weymouth Light and Power Co. for permission to place four poles on Prospect street. A hearing will be held August 4.

For several years past the Eastern Massachusetts street railway has not run cars on Pleasant street between South and East Weymouth, but have run busses instead. A large number of the poles and wires on that street have for sometime been in a dangerous condition, and the Selectmen have received a number of complaints. A short time ago the board voted to instruct the clerk to confer with the trustees regarding the removal of the poles and wires, and as a result the local superintendent, Daniel Connor, will within a few days, if he has not already done so start the work of removing the poles and wires. The complaint registered with the board regarding rails in Columbian Square being above the road bed will also receive attention. They will be covered up and tarred over.

The board received a complaint from F. A. Sulis regarding the cars standing in front of his store at Lincoln Square, and Mr. Connor has remedied the matter by having the cars park further up the street.

The Selectmen seem to have no trouble in getting the railway officials to attend to matters of this kind, in spite of the general impression that it is impossible to get the railroad to do anything. The poles and wires a Lincoln Square which were a menace to public safety for several years were all removed sometime ago at the request of the Selectmen.

The ceremonies will open at twilight on Burial Hill, at the site of the old fort and first meeting house, with a solemn service. There will be an address, followed by the reading of historical papers and the singing of old hymns. The following days the meetings will be held in the First Church, Unitarian. One of the features of the convention will be a reception at the Samoset House. B. H. Dawse of Boston is chairman of the committee. Alfred S. Burbank has charge of the local arrangements.

AMERICAN LEGION

—The facilities of both the Twin Cities, St. Paul and Minneapolis, will be taxed to the limit to provide "a billet for every buddy" when the National convention of the American Legion convenes there Sept. 15, was the declaration of S. L. Weiser, chairman of the housing committee, in announcing that thousands of reservations have already been received and that assignment to hotels would begin immediately. Preference in accommodations will be made Legion departments according to greatest increase in membership during the past year. Of the 57 departments in the American Legion, Florida, Mexico, and Tennessee are now in the lead.

To test the virility of war-time patriotism, the Berkeley Post of California of the American Legion recently adopted an unique plan. A crisp new one-dollar greenback was sent to 25 citizens, erstwhile speakers in support of the Liberty Loan drives, with instructions that they were to keep the dollar, providing they needed it more than the ex-service man. But in case, as patriots, they still believed as they professed to believe during the war "nothing is too good for the boys", they were to add another dollar to the one received and return both dollars to the American Legion Memorial fund. Eleven of the "war-time patriots" kept the dollar. The names of all recipients of the Legion's test were selected at random from newspapers published during the war.

State Auditor Alonzo B. Cook must employ three World War veterans in his office or go without assistance as the result of a recent decision by the State legislature. This predicament was forced upon him by the refusal of the State Legislature to empower him to appoint employees of his own department at the State capitol. Some time ago, three veterans who stood highest in civil service examnations for positions under Cook were refused instatement by him. The American Legion protested. Cook remained obdurate. Legislative action favorable to the veterans was the result.
